Roommates for eternity

'What We Do in the Shadows' returns for a final fang-filled season

By Sarah Passingham

TV Media

Preak out the creepy paper, because everyone's favorite immortal roommates ignore one last spin of the household chore chart as the Emmy-winning mockumentary sitcom "What We Do In the Shadows" nears its end. The show's sixth and final season premiere airs Monday, Oct. 21, on FX.

Vampires Nandor the Relentless (Kayvan Novak, "Cruella," 2021), Laszlo Cravensworth (Matt Berry, "Toast of London"), Nadja of Antipaxos (Natasia Demetriou, "Stath Lets Flats"), day-walker Colin Robinson (Mark Proksch, "The Office") and their human familiar-turnedvampire-turned-human friend Guillermo de la Cruz (Harvey Guillén, "Zoey's Extraordinary Playlist") are back to cause chaos on New York's Staten Island. There to lend a hand, as always, is The Guide, portrayed by Kristen Schaal ("The Last Man on Earth").

Don't miss a spooky new season of "What We Do in the Shadows," premiering Monday, Oct. 21, on FX.

Nadia Caterina Munno shines in 'The Pasta Queen'

By Caroline Collacutt

TV Media

rom Hello Sunshine and Candle Media, the mouth-watering new culinary travel series "The Pasta Queen" premieres
Thursday, Oct. 24, on Prime Video.

No, the name's not for show. As a descendant of an Italian pasta-making dynasty, host Nadia Caterina Munno ("In a Silent Way," 2020) knows the carbo-loaded meal better than most. With a gift for making everything from spaghetti, to farfalle, to ditalini, Munno truly has proved herself as a part of the cuisine's "royal family," so to speak, with knowledge that dates back to the 1800s.

After conquering the kitchen, Munno went on to become a New York Times and Wall Street Journal bestselling cookbook author, eager to share her love for Italian cuisine far and wide. She soon made appearances on "Today," "The Drew Barrymore Show," "Good Morning America" and more, reaching massive audiences with her impressive online following.
