The Kennedy Center Honors celebrate Dick Van Dyke and others

The Kennedy Center Honors still can be surprising, in that some legends of the performing arts haven't gotten them sooner.

A prime example: Dick Van Dyke, one of the most beloved stars in television history. He's in this year's Honors "class" as CBS broadcasts the 43rd annual ceremony Sunday, June 6, reconfigured for the coronavirus-pandemic age with segments taped in and around the Center in Washington, D.C. The latest Honors also celebrate actress-director-choreographer Debbie Allen, singer-songwriter and activist Joan Baez, country-music superstar Garth Brooks and violinist Midori. Past Honors recipient Gloria Estefan is the host.

A winner of five Primetime Emmy Awards plus a Tony (for "Bye Bye Birdie") and a Grammy, the ever-friendly Van Dyke muses that being notified of his Kennedy Center Honor "completely escaped my comprehension. It's just beyond my expectations. I had no idea this was coming."

While he's gratified to receive the Kennedy Center Honors, the 95-year-old Van Dyke reflects, "I just took jobs as they came. I went from vaudeville to radio to nightclubs to television. I've had it all ... and how lucky can you get? I've been trying to piece together the events of the past 70 years and how I got here!"

Here, Van Dyke reflects on some highlights of his career.

"Bye Bye Birdie" (1960-61 on stage, 1963 on film): "We were doing previews in Philadelphia, and the writers came down with a new song – and it was 'Put On a Happy Face.' And Chita (co-star Rivera) said, 'You know, Dick doesn't have anything to do in the first act. Why don't you give it to him?' And my life changed, right there. What a gal."

"The Dick Van Dyke Show" (1961-66): "It was very carefully crafted, because of the way Carl (creator-producer Reiner) wrote. He made us all believable, and the cast was just dynamite from the very beginning. Mary (Tyler Moore) had never done comedy, and she picked it up so fast."

"Mary Poppins" (1964): "Out of Carl's hands, I fell into Walt Disney's hands, and that was just lovely. That movie is going to be around for a long time."

"Chitty Chitty Bang Bang" (1968): "As we were finishing up that picture, Sean Connery was leaving the James Bond series – and ('Chitty' and Bond producer) Cubby Broccoli came to me and said, 'Do you want to play Bond?' And I said, 'Have you heard my British accent?' And that was the end of that!"

"Diagnosis Murder" (1993-2001 as a series, with related TV-movies both before and after it): "I never saw myself as a sleuth, but it worked. And at one point, I had all my kids and all my grandkids on the show!"

Checking in with YASSIR LESTER

Yassir Lester considers himself a writer and stand-up comic who happens to get nice acting jobs working with talented people. Not an actor, per se.

But he knows he's got a good thing going. In co-starring in two current series – as trader Yassir in Season 3 of the Sunday Showtime comedy “Black Monday” (on which he also serves as a writer) and providing the voice of Yangzi in Season 2 of Fox’s animated Monday sitcom “Duncanville” – the 36-year-old Georgia native stays busy year-round and gets to count the likes of Don Cheadle, Amy Poehler, Regina Hall, Rashida Jones, Casey Wilson, Paul Scheer and Andrew Rannells as his colleagues.

“I keep getting thrown into these situations where it’s not just everyone on this show is new,” Lester explains. “It’s people who are super-famous and established and then I have to run and catch up with them, essentially, or try my hardest. ... Just all these people who are just so good and are in it for real and know their voice and know their timing and have done this. And here’s me just putting on a goofy little (voice) hoping it works out.”

“Black Monday,” in particular, gives him ample opportunity to stretch his comedy muscles both as a writer and an actor. Creators Jordan Cahan and David Caspe assembled a cast capable of going off script and doing considerable improv, which plays into Lester’s background as a stand-up – someone who can think on his feet and be funny off the cuff.

“You’d be shocked how bad of a joke writer you could be and get away with it solely with performance,” Lester says. “And acting is literally just performance. And I’m not a phenomenal actor but I can perform well enough to convince people that I’m OK. And that all comes from stand-up comedy.”

Get out, get away and dine at celebrity chef-owned restaurants

With COVID restrictions loosening and the hospitality industry coming back online, Americans can finally get back to two of their favorite pastimes: traveling and going out to eat.

And if they're so inclined, those who like to travel on their stomach can venture to locations around the country to dine in restaurants owned and/or inspired by their favorite TV chefs. So whether it's Italian, burgers or farm-to-table you crave, there is no doubt an eatery with a celebrity chef's name on it to suit your tastes. Such as the establishments below.

Emeril's New Orleans Fish House, Las Vegas: As the name suggests, seafood and Creole cooking are what's for dinner at Emeril Lagasse's establishment on The Strip at the MGM Grand, offering kicked-up versions of market-fresh fish and shellfish creations alongside flavorful steaks and inspired pork and chicken dishes. And if you're into wine, you can pair your dish with Wine Spectator favorites. Entrees are in the $40-60 range.

Craft Los Angeles: Tom Colicchio brought his "what's local is best" style of cooking from New York to this West Coast establishment that emphasizes seasonal dining and warm hospitality in its main dining room and patio. Among the items on the dinner menu are diver scallops, Wagyu sirloin, Alaskan halibut and a pork rack. Entrees run $32-62.

Bobby's Burger Palace, various locations: Burgers, fries and shakes are what's on the menu of this chain from chef Bobby Flay, which has locations in Maryland, Connecticut, New York, Las Vegas, Ohio, Georgia, New Jersey and Washington, D.C. As one would guess, the creations are imaginative with toppings ranging from blue cheese and bacon to green chilis and cole slaw. There are also salads and other choices for the health-conscious. Prices are sub-$10.

Gordon Ramsay Hell's Kitchen, Las Vegas: Head to Caesars Palace on The Strip to dine at this eatery that offers an la carte menu with items such as beef Wellington, braised short ribs, jidori chicken scallopini and a dry-aged New York strip. Entree prices run $32-60. There is also a prix fixe three-course menu offered with ($149) and without wine ($90).

GDL Italian by Giada, Baltimore: Giada de Laurentiis shares her signature Italian dishes in an open-concept dining room in this restaurant inside Horseshoe Casino Baltimore, offering her own spins on traditional favorites like chicken parmesan, antipasti, baked lasagna and Tuscan ribeye. Prices are in the $35-60 range. After being closed due to the pandemic, it's slated to reopen this week.

Pato O'Ward a force to be reckoned with in IndyCar

Pato O'Ward is one of IndyCar's brightest young stars. But the upcoming Chevrolet Detroit Grand Prix provided him with one of his darkest moments of 2019.

It was on the 2.35-mile, 14-turn street course on Belle Isle where the Mexico native turned in one of the worst performances of his rookie year in the series, finishing 14th out of 22 drivers in Race 1 and 11th in Race 2. It was one of seven races he'd run that year after signing a part-time deal with Carlin and he wound up finishing 26th in points.

But 2020, a bad year for most everybody, proved to be the 22-year-old's breakthrough season. In a pandemic-abbreviated 14-race schedule, he took fourth place in the IndyCar standings, registering four podium finishes and one pole. And in his inaugural appearance in the Indianapolis 500, he wound up in sixth place, thus earning him the race's Rookie of the Year honors.

Saturday and Sunday, June 12 and 13, he'll be looking to put the bad memories of two years ago in the Motor City behind him when he vies with a field including Scott Dixon, Ryan Hunter-Reay, Josef Newgarden and Takuma Sato in the twin races of the 2021 Chevrolet Detroit Grand Prix, both of which air on NBC.

The STREAM Scene

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

“Movie: Brewmance”

The world of craft beer is front and center of this documentary from director Christo Brock (“Touch the Wall”), which follows the efforts of two groups of home brewers from Long Beach, Calif., to open their breweries and bring their product to the world. Legendary brewers Ken Grossman (Sierra Nevada), Fritz Maytag (Anchor Brewing) and Jim Koch (Boston Brewing) offer commentary.

“Love, Victor”

The coming-of-age drama returns for its sophomore round with a resolution to the Season 1 cliffhanger that left off with Victor Salazar (Michael Cimino) finally coming out to his conservative parents. He must deal with not only their reactions but also that of his heart-broken ex-girlfriend Mia (Rachel Naomi Hilson) while also experiencing the joy of his relationship with Benji (George Sear). (ORIGINAL)

“Sweet Tooth”

Set in a post-apocalyptic world, this New Zealand-filmed action adventure series follows the adventures of Gus (Christian Convery, “Pup Academy”), a half-human, half-deer boy who embarks on a quest for a new beginning accompanied by Jepperd (Nonso Anozie, “Conan the Barbarian”), a wandering loner. Stefania LaVie Owen, Aliza Vellani and James Brolin also star. (ORIGINAL)

“Loki” (June 9)

From Marvel Studios comes this drama series that is set after the events of the 2019 action feature “Avengers: Endgame” and follows Loki (Tom Hiddleston), the god of mischief, as he steps out of his brother’s shadow to embark on an adventure. Richard E. Grant, Gugu Mbatha-Raw and Owen Wilson are also in the talented cast. (ORIGINAL) celebrity q&a

Kathleen Turner OF 'THE KOMINSKY METHOD' ON NETFLIX

BY GEORGE DICKIE

How was it working with Michael Douglas again on "The Kominsky Method"? It was his idea that cast you in Season 3, correct?

I think so. I know that he and (creator and executive producer) Chuck Lorre discussed it. You know, one of the things that I understand is quite unusual though I don't have much experience or any experience really doing series and Chuck Lorre wrote every episode and evidently that isn't (usually) the case. But I'm very, very glad he did. Michael and I just seem to have a natural connection of some kind. It just falls right in, you know?

You first met when you did "Romancing the Stone" in 1983?

Yeah, yeah, yeah. He was producing as well as starring in it and so we had a meeting. He asked me out to lunch and we talked about it and I think I had to go in and do a film test to prove that I could be the wallflower that (her character, romance novelist Joan Wilder) is at the beginning, the insecure woman. And so I went in without any makeup and in tattered kind of clothes and stumbled over furniture. And he laughed and then said, "Yeah, OK."

One of the iconic scenes from "Romancing" was the mudslide in the Columbian rainforest but there were actual mudslides during filming. How was it dealing with that?

Oh honey (laughs), it rained so much that we started calling it "Douglasland" because every morning at 4 a.m., he'd have gravel trucks going in to try and lay down the road again. Oh, it was just a mess. It was absolutely a mess – but fun (laughs).

BY JAY BOBBIN

Dean Martin is Matt Helm, or vice versa, in 'The Silencers'

At the peak of the spy-movie craze, there was James Bond, of course ... but there was also Matt Helm.

Novelist Donald Hamilton's rugged secret-agent character gave Columbia Pictures what would become a four-film franchise, but Helm's image underwent quite a transformation in the hands of Dean Martin, who reshaped it (with the help of directors and screenwriters, of course) to fit his famously casual persona. The first picture in the series – 1966's "The Silencers" – leads off a Turner Classic Movies birthday tribute to Martin on Monday, June 7.

Helm's professional cover is that of a professional photographer, and he just happens to have a specially rigged camera that fires knives for his work in espionage. Ostensibly retired from sleuthing, he's drawn back into active duty by the agency ICE. A villain (Victor Buono, whose consumption of cans of a diet supplement in the opening sequence sets the movie's tone) is bent on using a missile potentially to spark a nuclear war, and Helm is deemed to be the man to stop him.

If that seems like standard-issue spy stuff, the difference is Martin, whose breezy style lightens the proceedings considerably without making them totally comical. It's hard to say that any real suspense is generated here, but the star performs what action he's called upon to do quite ably, whether getting tough with a possible enemy agent (Stella Stevens) or handling weapons in the inevitable climactic shootout.

There's little question that certain elements of "The Silencers" belong to their original times – the name of Helm's alluring assistant, Lovey Kravetz (played by Beverly Adams) isn't likely to please come viewers now – but that somewhat dated feel, which was meant to be oh-so-hip 55 years ago (extending to Martin also singing on the soundtrack), offers its own sort of entertainment value today. That also goes for the special effects, decidedly low-rent when put up against modern standards.

The Helm movies got progressively weaker with "Murderers' Row," "The Ambushers" and "The Wrecking Crew" ... so as TCM evidently knows, if you're going to see one of the pictures, "The Silencers" is the one. It also benefits from having such performing stalwarts as Arthur O'Connell, Robert Webber, James Gregory (who would reprise the part of Helm's boss in later movies), Roger C. Carmel and MGM-musical veteran Cyd Charisse, who basically is on hand for a couple of dance-performance sequences.

Even with all of them also on hand, "The Silencers" principally is Dean Martin's show, making it a fitting choice to start his birthday the TCM way.

BY JAY BOBBIN

Jana Kramer

OF 'SOCCER MOM MADAM' ON LIFETIME

Did the fact that "Soccer Mom Madam" is inspired by true events make it more appealing to you?

I am a sucker for true stories. The script as a whole inspired me. Even though the character had her flaws, she was brave, and powerful and never gave up. The fact that women wrote it was just the icing on the cake.

Do you feel your "Soccer Mom Madam" character's circumstances make her more generally relatable? And potentially make viewers less judgmental about her?

I loved her. She had to do what she had to for her kids, and you see that throughout the movie. She loses it a little, but her heart and her passion and her (reasoning is) what makes her likable.

heart and her passion and her (reasoning is) what makes her likable.

What would you say about your wardrobe in "Soccer Mom Madam," since given the story, you both do and don't have to look like someone in that line of work?

Let's just say I wasn't used to showing so much cleavage ... but then again, I was the most-dressed girl in the movie.

Your work for Lifetime in recent years largely has been in heartwarming holiday movies. What would you say about your decision to do "Soccer Mom Madam" relative to those?

Don't get me wrong, I love Christmas movies – but when I heard it wasn't (about) Christmas, I was like, "Yes! I'll do it!" Before I even read the script! Then, I read the script and begged the producer to give me the role. I loved it so much.

Have you and Lifetime been talking yet about another your doing holiday movie for this year?

We sure have. And it's a great fit.

Sara Haines picks up the pace of 'The Chase' for Season 2

After a break of several months, "The Chase" is on again.

The Sara Haines-hosted ABC game show – based on a long-popular international format – returns for a second season Sunday, June 6. As more contestants match wits against "Jeopardy!" champions in a trivia showdown, "The Chase" will be sandwiched weekly between the Steve Harvey-fronted "Celebrity Family Feud" and Anthony Anderson's take on "To Tell the Truth" in a night of "Summer Fun & Games."

Now that "The Chase" has been established for American viewers, "We're going to be able to go faster," reports the pleasant Haines ... who already has been going fast by necessity, particularly during the initial two-minute question round in which she has to get numerous, often unfamiliar pronunciations right.

"We were introducing what was a new show to a lot of audience members," notes Haines. "You've got to make sure that you speak clearly and not too fast, but I've been given the green light to 'play' a little more. I'm excited, because I think that will amp up the energy. And there are surprises that I can't reveal!"

Sunday is only one summer night ABC is devoting to games. Wednesdays are now occupied by Elizabeth Banks' "Press Your Luck" and Michael Strahan's "The $100,000 Pyramid," with Joel McHale's "Card Sharks" joining them June 16. On Monday, June 14, "The Celebrity Dating Game" debuts, with "New Girl" alum Zooey Deschanel and singer Michael Bolton as hosts. And beginning June 17, Thursdays will be marked by Rob Riggle and Joe Tessitore's comedic golf contest "Holey Moley 3D in 2D" and Craig Ferguson's "The Hustler."

Sara Haines

While acknowledging the bountiful summer game play ABC has, Haines – also a co-host of ABC's "The View" weekdays – admits to being "a little biased" in viewing "The Chase" as a creature unto itself: "When I got the job, with anyone I mentioned it to, I found that the people who know it are huge fans. Either you're part of its cult following or you've never heard of it, though that's more common in the U.S. than around the world."

The short run of 'Rebel': Why it happened

Q: "Rebel" just started. Why has it been canceled already? – Jean Scott, via e-mail

A: Despite massive advance promotion and a strong cast led by Katey Sagal, Andy Garcia and John Corbett, the Erin Brockovich-inspired ABC show ultimately had several factors working against it. As typically is the case with cancellations, the first and foremost consideration was its ratings, which were especially telling because it had one of the strongest lead-ins possible ... "Grey's Anatomy," from the same showrunner (Krista Vernoff). While it's terrific when a new series can cash in on a boost from such an established program, that spotlight also makes it very apparent when it doesn't.

Had the executive who ordered "Rebel" stayed in the same job at ABC, that might have bought the show some additional time, but that wasn't the case. Industry veteran Karey Burke moved over to become chief of 20th Television, and since "Rebel" was inherited by her ABC successor, that left it more vulnerable – particularly from a ratings standpoint, even when factoring in post-broadcast views, which now can be a big factor in whether a show continues or not.

BEST JUDY GARLAND MOVIES

"The Wizard of Oz" (1939) Well, of course. Generations continue to regale in the adventures of Dorothy Gale, Garland's character who is whisked from a Kansas farm – along with Toto, of course – into a magical land where she makes fast friends with the Tin Man, the Scarecrow and the Cowardly Lion (Jack Haley, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr).

"Babes on Broadway" (1941) One of the best of the variations on the "Let's put on a show!" theme well-covered by Garland and Mickey Rooney, this musical-comedy finds their characters staging a charity benefit.

"For Me and My Gal" (1942) Garland and Gene Kelly are expectedly terrific together as a performing team whose act – and budding romance – may be bashed by wartime obligations. The film is part of a Garland birthday tribute Thursday, June 10, on Turner Classic Movies.

"Meet Me in St. Louis" (1944) The duet of "Under the Bamboo Tree" by Garland and Margaret O'Brien is an irresistible part of this tale of four sisters who resent their father's job transfer to New York – which means they'll have to move from their beloved St. Louis with him.

"The Harvey Girls" (1946) Musical highlights including "On the Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe" help fuel this great Garland musical about several train passengers headed West to open a restaurant.

"Easter Parade" (1948) You surely know on which holiday this picture always makes a television appearance. Irving Berlin's score fuels this saga with Garland, Fred Astaire and Ann Miller as performers whose career choices largely are dictated by their romantic ties, past and present.

"In the Good Old Summertime" (1949) The premise of unidentified loves that also has driven "The Shop Around the Corner" and "You've Got Mail" services this great musical, which – as Liza Minnelli points out in "That's Entertainment!" – features her, at a very young age, with mom Garland in the closing scene.

"Summer Stock" (1950) Reunited with Gene Kelly, Garland is highly enjoyable as a farmer who lends her barn to a theater troupe, with typical MGM-musical romantic complications following in 3 ... 2 ... 1.

"A Star Is Born" (1954) Garland is the main factor setting this version of the much-told tale apart as she plays Esther Blodgett, whose showbiz career rises – under the stage name Vicki Lester – as that of the man she loves, Norman Maine (James Mason), sinks. Standout musical performances by Garland include "The Man That Got Away" and "Born in a Trunk."

"Judgment at Nuremberg" (1961) Garland hadn't made a movie in several years when she became part of director Stanley Kramer's all-star cast in this gripping drama about war-crime trials.

"Gay Purr-ee" (1962) The vocals by Garland as Mewsette, a French feline who wants to experience city life in Paris, are key to the success of this animated treat.
