Paul Stanley and KISS are the subjects of "Biography: KISSStory," premiering Sunday and Monday on A&E Network.

A&E's 'Biography: KISSStory' looks back on 50 years of rocking and rolling all night and partying every day

After more than 50 years of making music, the end of the road is nigh for heavy metal rock band KISS and A&E Network is marking the occasion with a two-part documentary upcoming on "Biography."

The four-hour installment titled "KISSStory," premiering Sunday and Monday, June 27 and 28, chronicles the career of the band that sold more than 100 million records, packed concert venues worldwide for more than 40 years and was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 2014 through archival footage, home movies and intimate interviews with founding members Paul Stanley and Gene Simmons, as well as comments by musicians Dave Grohl and Tom Morello, manager Doe McGhee, music producer Bob Ezrin and others. Current and past band members Tommy Thayer, Eric Singer, Ace Frehley and Peter Criss also appear.

Of course, chemistry is at the heart of any great enterprise and KISS is certainly no exception. Stanley and Simmons have known each other since the late 1960s when both were struggling New York City musicians and Stanley points to one quality they shared that made their collaboration so successful.

"Pragmatism," he says. "Gene from the beginning drove me crazy. That's my choice. I mean, he drove me crazy because I chose to stay and I wanted him to be someone he wasn't. But to be pragmatic, I certainly understood that I was far stronger with him than without him. And if he didn't know that, I did. You know, I knew that for my own success and for my own progress, we should be together. So that was purely a decision based upon my wanting to succeed and knowing that Gene would be a major ingredient in that happening."

And he says, there was a certain friendly competitiveness between them.

"We challenged each other creatively," he says. "If he wrote a song that I thought was good, I had to write a song that was that good or better. And yeah, we mirrored each other in really good ways. You know, all positive."

As KISS this summer resumes its End of the Road Tour, signaling their final live shows, this documentary gave Stanley the chance to look back on the band's career. He's proud of the band's body of work and he thinks this film will give fans a different view of KISS.

"I think for people to see us sitting around talking to each other about our relationship and about the time is something you don't see often," he says. "I do believe that many times people have seen us together, there's a certain shtick to it and there's a certain quality of entertainment, whereas this is much more intimate and much more personal. So to be looking back on the band and our friendship, which goes back now 52 years, that's pretty heady stuff. ... It's everything I hoped it would be at this point."

Checking in with MICHAEL BOLTON

When it came to “The Celebrity Dating Game,” Michael Bolton knew what he was getting into.

“I was a fan of the show when I was a kid,” says the veteran music star, a co-host (with Zooey Deschanel) and an executive producer of the contest update now airing Mondays on ABC. “We’ve all been seeing these reboots, new versions of classic shows, and they seem to be working quite well for people. And ABC (also the home of the original 1965-73 “Dating Game”), specifically, was quite excited about doing this one.”

Bolton knows “The Dating Game” serviced some celebrities-to-be in its initial years: “Farrah Fawcett definitely was on it, because I’d done my homework before I said, ‘I’m in.’ Sally Field, Ron Howard, Arnold Schwarzenegger ... Steve Martin was a contestant on the show, in the middle of two other guys who were vying for a date. He was so funny, I knew he was going to get picked.

“I like the idea of the celebrities here being athletes, ex-athletes, stars from a lot of different genres of television and film, just a lot of really talented people,” Bolton adds. “A couple of them, I knew and loved, and I didn’t want to give away that someone extra-special had just walked onto the set. And when you least expect it, somebody goes way off the chart.”

Bolton is happy to be part of the result in contouring famous songs, including some of his own, to suit the “Celebrity Dating Game” occasion. “I think I’m in a position to have fun,” he reasons, “and to say ‘No’ if the music is not comfortable for me.”

Streaming apps for the foodie on the go

Foodie apps that tell you where to eat, what to order and how to make reservations are a dime a dozen. And frankly, haven't we all seen enough photos of friends' meals on social media?

None of the following foodie apps do any of that. Instead, what they offer is real info on foods, recipes and tips from experts that you can try in your own home. So log on and check out these apps – and if you like them, download them to your cellphone or streaming device.

Cooking Channel GO: Download this app and watch your favorite Cooking Channel shows live and streaming, so series such as Andrew Zimmern's "Bizarre Foods," Bobby Flay's "Brunch at Bobby's," Alton Brown's "Good Eats" and "Yum & Yummer" with Eddie Jackson are only a few clicks away. It's free with your cable subscription, though the content does contain ads.

The Homicidal Homemaker: Hosted by Kaci Hansen, the self-proclaimed "the Martha Stewart of the Macabre," this free app offers up recipes, cocktails, DIY tutorials and other content designed to appeal to fans of the horror genre. All recipes can also be found on The Homicidal Homemaker official website. The series was a recipient of the Silver Bolo Award on Shudder's "The Last Drive-In," so it has Joe Bob Briggs' seal of approval.

WineMasters.tv: The serious oenophile will want to check out this subscription app that contains master classes and documentaries on all things grape, with topics ranging from Spanish riojas and German rieslings to Andalusian sherries and French Bordeaux covered in depth. There are also tutorials on how to cook with wine and opinion videos from wine experts.

The Gourmet Insider: This free app offers up insider perspectives on how to create, savor and share fresh, delicious and fun foods and beverages and gives guidance to everyone from cooking and entertaining newcomers to experienced and adventurous home chefs and mixologists – all with an emphasis on pairing foods with the right beverages.

Bhavna's Kitchen: Chef Bhavna is your host for this series of informative videos in which she shows how to prepare vegetarian appetizers, entrees, drinks and desserts from around the world, all with an Indian flair and designed for people on the go.

Cooking Hawaiian Style: As the name implies, Hawaiian cuisine is what's on the menu as the 50th State's top chefs, celebrities and everyday cooks prepare local Hawaiian comfort foods in a series of informative videos.

Federer returns to Wimbledon, perhaps for the last time

At 39, might the 2021 Wimbledon Championships be the last for the King of Grass?

Indeed, it's a minor miracle that Roger Federer is still competing at an age that makes him the oldest player on the men's tour, especially given his recent knee surgeries, a year of rehabilitation, his lukewarm comeback and spotty performances.

But it was with Wimbledon in mind that he pulled out of the French Open earlier this month following a grueling third round victory over Dominik Koepfer. He was satisfied to get a hard-fought win in what was only his third tournament in the last 16 months but he didn't want to push himself beyond his comfort zone reasoning that he had played too little to have a chance to advance much farther on the clay surface of Roland Garros Stadium.

Federer, at this writing the World No. 8, will begin his quest for his ninth title in London when he vies with a field including Nadal, Novak Djokovic, Daniil Medvedev, Dominic Thiem and Stefanos Tsitsipas in the 2021 Wimbledon Championships, which get under way Monday, June 28, and air on ESPN and ESPN2.

The STREAM Scene

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

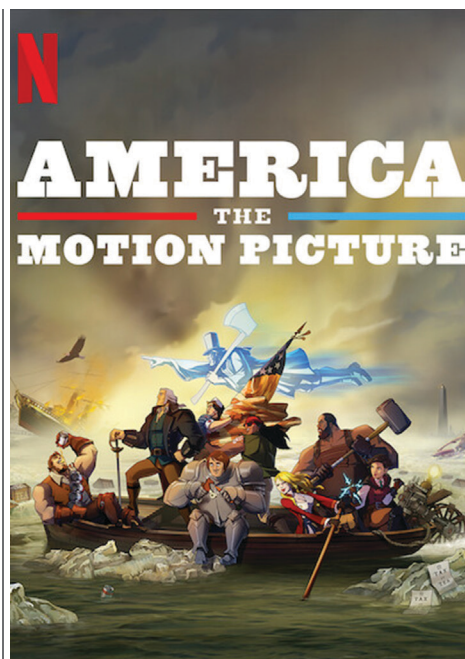

“Movie: The Tomorrow War”

From director Chris McKay (“The Lego Movie”) comes this sci-fi drama set in the year 2051, where time travelers from 30 years in the future warn mankind that a losing battle against a deadly alien species is in their future. Chris Pratt stars as a man who teams up with a scientist and his estranged father to try to rewrite the planet’s fate. (ORIGINAL)

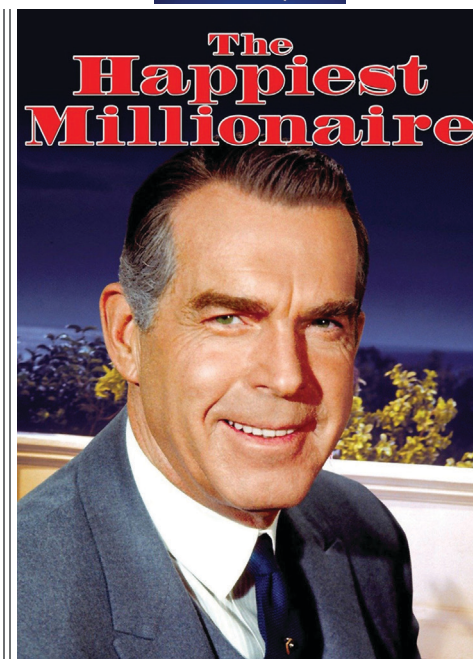

“Movie: Safer at Home”

Set in Los Angeles during the COVID-19 pandemic, this 2021 thriller follows the terrifying series of events that ensue when a group of friends decide to throw a wild online party from what they thought was the safety of their homes. Will Wernick (“No Escape”) directs a cast of largely unknowns.

“Movie: America: The Motion Picture”

Get ready for a dose of tongue-in-cheek revisionist history in this animated comedy film, which follows a chainsaw-wielding George Washington as he joins forces with beer-swilling Sam Adams, scientist Thomas Edison, horseman Paul Revere and a cranky Geronimo to take down the Brits in the American Revolution. Channing Tatum, Simon Pegg and Judy Greer head the voice cast. (ORIGINAL)

“The Happiest Millionaire” (Available now)

Fred MacMurray was in the midst of his long run on “My Three Sons” when he starred in this 1967 comedy as an eccentric Philadelphia millionaire who hires a clever Irish immigrant (British pop star Tommy Steele) to be his butler. Greer Garson, Geraldine Page and John Davidson also star for director Norman Tokar (“The Apple Dumpling Gang”).

celebrity q&a

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Rose Byrne

OF 'PHYSICAL' ON APPLE TV+

Appearing in that body-revealing suit every day had to be hard. Were you looking in the mirror 100 times or scared to eat breakfast?

They were less hard than the more intimate scenes where she's having a lot of voiceovers and stuff like that. In a way, the aerobics aspect of it is so physical – not to make a pun – but it really is that it gets you out of your head because I'm so focused on trying to do the moves or the choreography and so on and so forth, it's actually quite liberating, weirdly. I had never really done aerobics that much, so I can see why it is so addictive and empowering and all those sorts of things.

And I worked so closely with Kameron Lennox, our brilliant costume designer, and those leotards are just within an inch of their life. I mean I can't even begin to tell you, it's like a Marvel costume or something. The amount of fittings I had, an inch here, a pinch there, a lift here, I actually feel incredibly secure in them, which is fun.

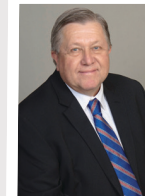

What did you think of the '80s when you were doing this? Did you like the era? And then have you ever followed any kind of lifestyle guru?

I haven't followed any lifestyle guru, to be honest. I'm Australian; I think we have healthy skepticism about anybody who's telling us what to do. And my parents are very skeptical about anybody who's trying to sell you any sort of plan or solution or cure. But saying that, the '80s is fascinating to me. And I had just finished doing "Mrs. America" – or in the middle of doing it when Annie (Weisman, the series' creator and showrunner) approached me.

And in a funny way, "Physical" felt like such a great companion piece because Sheila is a young woman but definitely has come up through the '60s and '70s so she's sort of a child of that movement and yet she's become quite disillusioned by it, I think under the surface. And this is really following sort of a feminist from that time and discovering her real source of empowerment ...

BY JAY BOBBIN

Redford and Dunaway's 'Condor' run remains thrilling

During the Watergate era, the conspiracy thriller was one of the most popular movie genres, and "Three Days of the Condor" was one of its best examples.

Now streaming on HBO Max, the Sydney Pollack-directed 1975 thriller has had an enduring legacy, to the extent that it inspired "Condor" ... the series originally made for AT&T's Audience Network and recently picked up by EPIX. Despite some revisions to the content, the show kept the basic theme of a fugitive on the run after assassins (led in the film by a suave Max von Sydow) commit a massacre at his office, a (supposedly) disguised research office for the CIA.

In the original version, the man being chased by the killers who missed him is played by Robert Redford, playing brilliant yet vulnerable as a likable know-it-all who's savvy enough to know that a murder scheme was lifted from the "Dick Tracy" comic strip. Out getting lunch while his co-workers are being slaughtered, he returns to a horrific scene that sends him fleeing through New York, hoping his superiors will bring him in and protect him.

Instead, as represented coldly and superbly by Cliff Robertson, they leave him on his own to draw fire ... and to figure out why he and his late colleagues became targets. Needing shelter, Redford's Joe Turner randomly kidnaps a customer from a store he's ducked into; luckily for him and us, she's played by Faye Dunaway, making for a very photogenic couple even at their most tense moments together.

Faye Dunaway in "Three Days of the Condor"

Pollack keeps the action moving at a fine pace with some show-stopping moments, such as the visit by a presumed mailman to the Dunaway character's home, and the ultimate confrontation that lets Turner know whether he's merely been paranoid about his hunch that there's a rogue "CIA within the CIA."

A terrific light-jazz score by frequent Pollack collaborator Dave Grusin underscores the tale, which was condensed for movie purposes to "Three Days of the Condor" from James Grady's novel "Six Days of the Condor." Also notable in a cast filled with first-rate supporting players is John Houseman as a CIA higher-up who's even chillier here than Robertson. And that takes some doing.

Perhaps Redford has gotten more acclaim for other films, but "Three Days of the Condor" surely is one of his most entertaining. Though it's almost 50 years old, it maintains its fresh feel, no small feat for a picture that has been around for almost half a century. And as much as it's a child of its time, its questioning of leaders' ethics remains quite relevant now.

OF 'THE BOLD TYPE' ON FREEFORM

As "The Bold Type" ends its five-season run, are you satisfied with where your character Jane ends up?

I am, honestly. When the writers first came to me and told me what they were thinking of, it honestly made me very happy. I think Jane ends up exactly where she should be. Her ending shows a big evolution for her, and I really couldn't have asked for it to be better. I think it will be surprising for people, but in a way that everyone can relate to and be happy for her.

I think the writers did a great job in terms of where these women started and what they've been through. Their endings show real growth and connection to themselves and the people around them, and to what they want out of life. I hope viewers understand how difficult it is to wrap up five years in only six episodes, but I think our writers have been very thoughtful about where these characters end up.

One of the strong points of "The Bold Type" is its music, which has focused on female artists. What's your take on that?

There's such emotion and drive in the scenes themselves, that's exponentially heightened by the music. Songs are stories, so I think (music supervisor) Rob Lowry has done an incredible job in curating these playlists to take you on the same journey the characters are going on. I've discovered so many new artists and so much new music through being on the show.

Before "The Bold Type," you were a finalist in Season 9 of the Fox run of "American Idol." Where does your music career stand now?

I was starting to get to a place where I was feeling discouraged, and I wasn't super-confident in what I wanted to do. Lately, I've been posting more covers (of songs popularized by other singers) on Instagram, trying to get back to a place of just doing it because I love it, and not with any expectation of how it will be received. I'm excited to start writing more music with more of a positive energy, and not putting so much pressure on what the outcome will be.

Partial to Presley? TCM has lots of Elvis in July

To be designated a “Star of the Month” by Turner Classic Movies, a performer has to have a special quality – and that Elvis Presley had that goes without saying.

Though many of his films were variations on the same theme or character (which Presley himself acknowledged), the singer-actor became iconic for his particular brand of screen entertainment, often seeing him suddenly break into song without a backup band or chorus seemingly present. Still, it worked and still does, which is why Presley pictures will occupy Thursday nights and very early Friday mornings weekly for the month starting July 1.

Following are some highlights among the scheduled attractions.

“Double Trouble” (1967, July 1): Playing a singer (imagine that!), Presley hits England and gets involved with an endangered heiress (Annette Day, in her sole acting credit). Presley never went overseas for this, nor for any other film or concert work.

“Viva Las Vegas” (1964, July 8): Presley’s ultimate star vehicle gave him an ideal partner in Ann-Margret and pretty much set the blueprint (he races cars!) for numerous other Elvis movies. Some dubbed Ann-Margret “the female Elvis,” and their tangible and highly energetic chemistry makes up greatly for a plot that’s pretty spare, to put it mildly.

Elvis Presley in “G.I. Blues”

“Blue Hawaii” (1961, July 15): You couldn’t hope for the islands to look lovelier than in this tale, in which Presley raised his acting game opposite a veteran talent named Angela Lansbury.

“G.I. Blues” (1960, July 15): Presley was recently out of the U.S. Army when he started work on this military-themed musical-comedy.

“Kid Galahad” (1962, July 15): Presley is sincere as a boxer who succeeds in the ring, though he desires a quieter life.

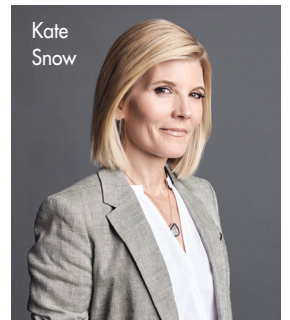

“Jailhouse Rock” (1957, July 22): The legendary scene with Presley singing, and gyrating to, the title tune against a sparse silhouette of an actual jail says it all about this classic.

Looks like Snow: An anchor-reporter’s network history

Q: I enjoyed seeing Kate Snow fill in for Lester Holt on “NBC Nightly News” recently. How long has she been with NBC? –Jim Prior, via e-mail

Kate Snow

A: After stints at NPR, CNN and (principally for “Good Morning America”) ABC, Emmy winner Snow joined NBC News in 2010, mainly as a correspondent for “Dateline NBC,” to which she still contributes. She also can be seen anchoring “NBC Nightly News” regularly on the Sunday edition. Additionally, the Cornell University and Georgetown University graduate has hosted the Oxygen series “Relentless,” and she also was a weekday MSNBC anchor for a while.

Kevin Bacon

Q: Is “City on a Hill” over? – Ron North, Sacramento, Calif.

A: No. A couple of weeks after Season 2 ended, Showtime ordered a third season of the Boston-set crime drama starring Kevin Bacon and Aldis Hodge. Production is slated to resume later this year in New York, with location sequences done in Massachusetts. Expect to see the new episodes start running sometime in the first half of 2022.

BEST SEAN CONNERY MOVIES

"Darby O'Gill and the Little People" (1959)

As much as for the movie itself, this Walt Disney production was important in Connery's career as a project that got him noticed when casting was being done later for a certain role that involved the number 007.

"Marnie" (1964) In and around his James Bond work, Connery diversified by working with Alfred Hitchcock on this melodrama – which Turner Classic Movies shows Sunday, June 27 – about a businessman with a strong interest in a troubled employee (Tippi Hedren).

"Goldfinger" (1964) Most Bond purists concur this is the first 007 screen adventure that has it all, including a deftly balanced Connery performance that blends suave charm and rugged action smoothly.

"The Hill" (1965) The long association of Connery and director Sidney Lumet began with this grueling drama of World War II military prisoners forced to do hard labor.

"The Offence" (1973) Connery's desire to get off the "star" pedestal manifested itself in this gritty police drama, again under Sidney Lumet's direction, about a London police detective whose anger goes too far when he interrogates a suspect.

"Murder on the Orient Express" (1974) One of many familiar faces in this great staging of the Agatha Christie mystery, Connery makes his presence known as one of the suspects questioned by Hercule Poirot (Albert Finney).

"The Wind and the Lion" (1975) Connery is superb as a Middle Eastern renegade who invites large-scale trouble by kidnapping an American (Candice Bergen).

"The Man Who Would Be King" (1975) Originally envisioned for such stars as Clark Gable and Humphrey Bogart, this John Huston-directed Rudyard Kipling adaptation was delayed many years, which was great news for Connery and Michael Caine in playing soldiers of fortune in India.

"Robin and Marian" (1976) This wonderfully mature take on the Robin Hood legend cast Connery opposite Audrey Hepburn (who played, of course, his true love Maid Marian).

"Outland" (1981) Pretty much "High Noon" on another planet, this underrated sci-fi tale features

Connery as a lawman who targets a sly profiteer (Peter Boyle).

"The Untouchables" (1987) Oscar came calling for Connery, and deservedly so, for his portrayal of a Chicago beat cop whose street smarts go a long way in helping U.S. Treasury man Eliot Ness (Kevin Costner) take down Al Capone (Robert De Niro).

"The Hunt for Red October" (1990) Connery stepped in for the originally cast Klaus Maria Brandauer in Tom Clancy's tale of a Russian submarine whose captain may be trying to defect, drawing CIA analyst Jack Ryan (Alec Baldwin) into the matter.

"The Rock" (1996) If Connery could make such a great secret agent, why not an equally fine criminal? He could, as he proved in this Jerry Bruckheimer-produced action fest in which he plays a convict sprung to help a bookish FBI agent (Nicolas Cage) thwart a renegade general (Ed Harris) threatening San Francisco, using Alcatraz as a base.

"Entrapment" (1999) One of Connery's best later roles was supplied by this adventure about a master criminal supposedly buying into an insurance investigator's (Catherine Zeta-Jones) scheme to snare him.
