'CSI: Vegas' gives a long-popular crime drama new life

If a new series has you thinking it's 2000 again instead of 2021, you can be forgiven.

When creator and executive producer Anthony E. Zuiker's Las Vegas-set "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" launched 21 years ago, it quickly became a bigger hit than many anticipated ... establishing a long-running franchise that also came to encompass the spinoffs "CSI: Miami," "CSI: NY" and "CSI: Cyber." Now, what's old truly is new again as CBS revisits the initial location and welcomes back some of the original cast members with the premiere of "CSI: Vegas" Wednesday, Oct. 6.

A sequel to the first show, the latest iteration reunites William Petersen (also an executive producer again) and Jorja Fox as romantically linked – in fact, formerly married – forensic detectives Gil Grissom and Sara Sidle. Other returnees who'll be familiar to the "CSI" faithful include Wallace Langham as David Hodges and (in multiple episodes) Paul Guilfoyle as Jim Brass. Paula Newsome also stars as the crime lab's current leader, and Matt Lauria, Mel Rodriguez ("The Last Man on Earth") and Mandeep Dhillon are among additional cast newcomers.

"I think that between Las Vegas, 'Miami,' 'New York' and 'Cyber,' we did hit a sort of audience exhaustion," Zuiker allows. "It was always in the back of our minds that this would probably come back, because 'CSI' was such an iconic show and it was mystery-based, it would make perfect sense at some point. I believe we made the crime genre white-hot, and it's still pretty hot to this day, and I think the timing is interesting because the world has changed."

Indeed, then-cutting-edge forensic techniques were a big part of "CSI's" appeal ... and they still appeal to Petersen, who's an executive producer as well as a star of the new show, as he was the first time. "I sort of jumped at it," he says, "because of the idea of revisiting Grissom and Sara, to see who we are now. Plus, it's a different world than it was 20 years ago. The idea of being able to come back into the land of science, I thought, was really a great opportunity."

While allowing that "we had to diversify the cast, based on the times," Zuiker feels "CSI: Vegas" has a strong suit in presenting principal actors from the original run again.

"It wasn't that difficult" to get them back, he maintains. "It was really just sitting down with Billy (Petersen) first at a diner in downtown Los Angeles, much like when we sat down at a cafe in 1999. I expected much more of a struggle, but I think he saw enough familiar faces who had been around from Day One to say 'Yes.'"

Walking in space can be exhilarating and frightening all at once. Chris Cassidy says it's the experience that most makes him feel like an astronaut.

In the six-part Disney+ documentary series "Among the Stars," which begins streaming Wednesday, Oct. 6, the 51-year-old retired astronaut and Navy SEAL brings viewers along on his final mission aboard the International Space Station in 2013. The goal for the team of engineers, flight controllers and specialists: Repair the Alpha Magnetic Spectrometer, a $2 billion science experiment aimed at revealing the origins of the universe.

For Cassidy and fellow astronauts Luca Parmitano and Drew Morgan, it's a daring mission that encompasses a series of complex spacewalks, where one seemingly small mistake can ruin everything. So the pressure can be immense.

As a veteran of 10 spacewalks, Cassidy was familiar with the territory. But he remembers feeling a little intimidated the first time he stepped into space.

"I was brand new and wide-eyed and hoping not to screw up ...," the New England native explains. "You're out there installing some expensive piece of equipment or repairing some expensive piece of equipment and the ground team has put in a great deal of effort to get all of the materials and get you ready and now you just have to execute and do it to perfection, like pitch a no-hitter, so to speak. And there's a little bit of nerves that goes with that. And you add that to the nerves of just being out there in the vacuum of space.

"You are wearing a spaceship on your back," he continues. "The spacesuit doesn't have umbilicals connecting you to the space station providing any life support. It's all on you, and when you understand that it can be a little intimidating. But you quickly settle down and get in your groove. We tell new spacewalkers, 'Just pretend you're in the (training) pool and you'll feel at home.'"

It's the trained vs. the self-taught in Hulu's 'Baker's Dozen'

Is it better to be trained formally or in the school of hard knocks? That's a question to be worked out in a new baking competition series coming to Hulu.

"Baker's Dozen," which begins streaming Thursday, Oct. 7, pits 13 bakers who are formally trained pros, self-taught pros or self-taught home bakers in a competition to see who can create the most elaborate and impressive desserts. Over the course of three rounds, their confections will be judged on the basis of creativity, execution, presentation and taste, with the winner of each episode receiving a $5,000 grand prize and the coveted golden rolling pin.

Hosting the series are Tamera Mowry-Housley ("The Real") and cookbook author, restaurateur and former White House pastry chef Bill Yosses, who thinks that the series will strike a chord among a surprisingly wide swath of viewers.

"It seemed just right after quarantine (that) many people took up like new hobbies or new activities, something to keep them busy," he says, "and apparently a lot of people took up baking. So there were these great home cooks, basically home bakers, who had accomplished so many great things and so they are part of the mix as are some professionals who have branched out into new areas. And so that was, I think, one of the main things that interested me."

And the contestants are put to the test in a number of areas. For instance, in the opener they're challenged to decorate cake pops, then make 13 exactly uniform pastries followed by a hybrid of two different desserts. Like any competition series, pressure comes into play as TV cameras bear down and the clock ticks away. All appear to handle it well.

But what pleased Yosses most was the camaraderie of the contestants, who seemed to be genuinely rooting for one another, even after they were eliminated.

"Even though they're competing, they were sympathetic to one another," he says. "I thought that was really cool. I don't know if that's a generational thing because most of the contestants were pretty young. But they sort of encouraged each other and there was a little bit of like, I don't know, comical trash-talking. But you could see that they were enjoying it and they kind of bonded over this shared experience and so I really enjoyed seeing that."

Stafford eyes a Super Bowl title in Los Angeles

Matthew Stafford has played a lot of games and set a lot of records for the Detroit Lions. And afterward, "You're not limited in anything you after 12 seasons of mostly losing football in the Motor City, the 33-year-old quarterback wants what every NFL player wants: a Super Bowl ring.

This past offseason, he requested and got a trade, to the Los Angeles Rams for two future first round picks, a third round pick in the most recent draft and quarterback Jared Goff. It was a steep price to pay for the Rams, who took a first round exit in the 2020 Divisional playoff, but it might also be the final piece of what could be a championship team.

The Rams and their fans certainly got a taste of that in their Week 1 game against the Chicago Bears, when Stafford completed 20 of 26 passes for 321 yards with three touchdowns and no interceptions in a 34-14 victory over his former NFC North rivals. The uber-efficient performance also drew raves from teammates and head coach Sean McVay, who commented can do in the pass game."

Stafford brings an impressive resume to L.A., holding Lions all-time records for passing yards (45,109), touchdowns (282), completions (3,898) and wins (74). Given the talent that now surrounds him, Stafford and the Rams hope his move west will bring more milestones to what may be a Hall of Fame career.

"Back to the Rafters"

Fans of the Australian comedy "Packed to the Rafters" will want to take a look at this new series that picks up six years after the original and finds Dave and Julie (Erik Thomson, Rebecca Gibney) have created a new life in the country with youngest daughter Ruby (Willow Speers), while Grandad Ted (Michael Caton) struggles to find his place. (ORIGINAL)

"The New York Times Presents"

"Move Fast & Vape Things," the eighth film in this investigate series, looks at the e-cigarette maker Juul, founded by two idealistic Stanford grad students with the intention of helping people quit smoking only to have their product used to create a new generation of addicts. (ORIGINAL)

"Maid"

Based on Stephanie Land's bestselling memoir, this drama series follows the story of Alex (Margaret Qualley, "Fosse/Verdon"), a single mother who turns to housekeeping to escape an abusive marriage as she battles against homelessness, poverty and bureaucracy. Nick Robinson, Anika Noni Rose and Andie MacDowell (Qualley's mother) are also in the cast. (ORIGINAL)

"Muppets Haunted Mansion" (Oct. 8)

Celebrity cameos and "Easter eggs" for Disney fans mark the Muppets' first-ever Halloween special, which follows worldfamous daredevil the Great Gonzo as he takes on the greatest challenge of his life by spending one night in the dreaded Haunted Mansion. Craig Robinson, Pat Sajak and the late Ed Asner are among those making appearances. (ORIGINAL) celebrity q&a

BY JAY BOBBIN

Piper Perado of the big leap' on fox

Your business-executive character on "The Big Leap" seeks a fresh start by entering a dance competition to land a spot in a production of "Swan Lake." Do you feel that speaks to the times we're in?

I think so. During the pandemic, or when they came back to work, they were deciding whether they really liked their jobs in the first place. It was like, "Why am I spending so much time on it?" People got a chance to reinvent themselves, and many of them have been taking that.

Is it accurate to say that in "The Big Leap," the characters' experiences parallel those of many of the actors?

The show has been really fun for me, because the cast of actors goes to ballet class as a company. It brings me a lot of joy, and I think that's why my character Paula is in the game. She just wants to be there because it gives her so much happiness, and any kind of competitive element is less interesting to her.

Are you a ballet fan yourself?

I love to go to the ballet. One of the great things about working in so many different places is that so many cities have ballet companies. I remember that when we were doing "Covert Affairs," I went to the ballet in Buenos Aires. What's great about ballet is that it doesn't matter what language you speak; you're always welcomed into the story.

How have you found the COVID-19-related protocols on the set of "The Big Leap"?

When you're dancing very close to someone, the first couple of days, you're nervous ... but all the different unions in the entertainment industry work together to create the protocols, all the zones, all the testing, all the mask-wearing.

It's really detailed, and it gives me a lot of comfort that there are people on the set whose whole job it is to make sure everyone has hand sanitizer, everyone is tested, and everyone has their masks on. When we do a dance scene, I know that everyone has been working hard to make sure it's safe.

BY JAY BOBBIN

A trek through a human body is a 'Fantastic Voyage'

No matter how far science-fiction movies have come in the past 55 years, there's never been another quite like "Fantastic Voyage."

Offered by Turner Classic Movies to start a tribute to director Richard Fleischer on Saturday, Oct. 9, the 1966 fantasy takes a miniaturized submarine crew on a trip through a defecting scientist's (Jean Del Val) body to repair a critical injury from within. Bear in mind that this was made before the era of commonly used computer-generated special effects, so what the film achieves with its visuals - which earned two Oscars - is

The story starts on a very realistic note as the scientist in question is delivered, supposedly safely, to his destination by an intelligence agent played by Stephen Boyd. Soon afterward, though, he's the target of an attack committed by automobile ...and it's determined that the only way to repair the damage to his brain is to deploy a team to enter his body, injected via a hypodermic needle, and stage the needed procedure.

That would seem impossible, if not for a top-secret process that can shrink anything – or anyone – down to the size of a microbe. The Boyd character is enlisted to go along on the sub to provide security for a surgeon and his assistant (Arthur Kennedy, Raquel Welch), a rather tightly wound medical consultant (Donald Pleasence) and the vessel's driver (William Redfield). And they have only an hour to get in, accomplish their mission and get out before they start growing back to normal size.

It's a terrific sci-fi concept, and though a remake has been discussed for many years (with such filmmakers as James Cameron and Guillermo del Toro involved at various stages), the original holds up quite durably. For all of its scientific intrigue, it wasn't hurt by the presence of then-relative-newcomer Welch, who made a major splash in the movie industry between this and "One Million Years B.C." the following year.

Not all of the action in "Fantastic Voyage" takes place inside a body, and the picture also provides good roles on the "outside" for reliable screen veterans Edmond O'Brien and Arthur O'Connell as military officials overseeing the situation. Though it's hard to recognize him with a medical mask over his face, James Brolin - then a contract player at 20th Century Fox also is present.

"Fantastic Voyage" is one of those films that likely sounded great in the pitch, but also must have generated questions about whether it actually could be done. As it turned out, it could, and the result remains fascinating and hugely entertaining.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Kelli Berglund

OF 'HEELS' ON STARZ

Was this a big learning curve for you when it came to wrestling?

Yeah, absolutely. I mean, I went into this knowing that I was signing up to play a character that knew a thing or two about wrestling and had a lot of athleticism behind her. And I grew up as a dancer so that was sort of my background that I brought into this, which helped with learning choreography and just being agile in general. But I knew nothing about wrestling and they had me in the gym every single day, even on my off days, to get stronger and learn the basics. So it was a complete transformation for me, a hundred percent.

What was the coolest move that they taught you?

There's actually a moment in the trailer, I believe it's called a hurricanrana, and I do this move on a guy outside of a bar. And that's actually my stunt double you see doing it in the trailer but they taught that move to me in a safer setting with padding around and slowed down about half speed. That was really cool just to learn that.

I just thought it was all really interesting, just starting with walking up and choosing a persona to play in the ring and what that means for your character when you're trotting around the ring and what your attitude is, stuff like that. I mean, running the ropes, it looks easy but it's not and the bruises I have on my back are to show for that (laughs). But it's so cool just to take on this new sport and start to learn some things and be somewhat OK at it.

InFocus

"I Know What You Did Last Summer: Season 1" (Amazon — series premiere, Oct. 15)
Based on Lois Duncan's 1973 novel, which also served as the basis of the iconic 1997 film of the same title, this new original horror/mystery series stars Madison Iseman, Bill Heck, Brianne Tju and Ezekiel Goodman in the story of friends haunted by a tragic car accident on the night of their high school graduation and stalked by a brutal killer.

"The Next Thing You Eat: Season 1" (Hulu — series premiere, Oct. 21)

From chef David Chang and Academy Award-winning filmmaker Morgan Neville ("Road Runner: A Film About Anthony Bourdain") comes this original six-episode docuseries that explores how the seismic changes around us will affect how we eat, including everything from lab-grown fish and insect farms to robots and artificial intelligence.

'The Republic of Sarah' disbands in ending its run

Q: Will "The Republic of Sarah" be back? - Carrie Blake, via e-mail

A: It won't. Shortly before the first-season finale had its Labor Day airing, The CW announced that the show wasn't being renewed. The drama - which starred Stella Baker, daughter of "The Mentalist" star Simon Baker, as the leader of a New Hampshire town that declared its independence from the rest of the United States – had a long process to get on the air, after first being developed for CBS with Sarah Drew ("Grey's Anatomy") in the main role. After that network passed on it, The CW commissioned a new pilot with a new cast, and the single-season run was the result.

Q: Will "Hocus Pocus" be on television again this Halloween season? - Julie Grant, Bend, Ŏre.

A: Absolutely. The Disney-produced 1993 fantasy – starring Bette Midler, Sarah Jessica Parker and Kathy Najimy as sibling witches - has become a seasonal mainstay, particularly for Freeform and its "31 Nights of Halloween" event. You'll find the movie scheduled throughout the month there, with some of its showings on Sunday, Oct. 3, Tuesday, Oct. 5 and Saturday, Oct. 9. A sequel currently is in development, with plans to premiere it on Disney+ next year ... and with Midler, Parker and Najimy all returning.

'American Masters' profiles much-honored entertainment legend Rita Moreno

It's not an overstatement to call Rita Moreno a miracle of entertainment.

The legendary, dynamic EGOT - a winner of a Primetime Emmy (two, actually), a Grammy, an Oscar and a Tony - still is going strong, revisiting one of her most famous projects in Steven Spielberg's forthcoming movie remake of "West Side Story." She's celebrated by PBS "American". "Ne's celebrated by PBS "American". Masters" with the new profile "Rita Moreno: Just a Girl Who Decided to Go for it" Tuesday, Oct. 5 (check local listings).

"If I was going to do this project, it was important for me to make a promise that I would be as honest and truthful as possible,' Moreno reflects. "That never changed, that objective. I didn't want on record for the rest of my life, or the rest of my recognition, that I lied about something deliberately.'

Still, Moreno admits to creative dodging when a certain studio executive pursued her early in her career: "That was a very scary time for me. I just had my girlfriends who lived with me, answer the phone all the time, and if it was him, I was in the bath or I was out shopping or I was napping or ... there were all kinds of reasons why I couldn't talk to him. He finally 'got it.'

Two of Moreno's colleagues on the recent reboot of "One Day at a Time" – executive producer Norman Lear and fellow star Îustina Machado – comment on her life and career in the PBS program, as do Lin-Manuel Miranda (also an executive producer of the show, along with Lear), Gloria Estefan, Morgan Freeman, Whoopi Goldberg, Eva Longoria, Hector Elizondo and the late playwright Terrence McNally (whose The Ritz" earned Moreno her Tony Award).

Followed immediately by the related minidocumentary "Lights, Camera, Accion!," a history of Latinos in Hollywood, the Moreno portrait sees its Puerto Rico-native subject discuss being her own person ... no matter what Hollywood power players may have thought. She says, "I suddenly realized, 'Why am I letting these people tell me who I am?' That didn't happen until much, much later."

BEST 20TH CENTURY FOX MOVIES

"The Grapes of Wrath" (1940) The social conscience of the 20th Century Fox studio became well-known with Oscar-winning director John Ford's version of the John Steinbeck novel about a migrant-worker family.

"How Green Was My Valley" (1941) John Ford also directed this memorable drama of a Welsh mining family, reflected through the eyes of its youngest member (Roddy McDowall).

"Gentleman's Agreement" (1947) Director Elia Kazan's drama about prejudice, starring Gregory Peck as a reporter experiencing the subject, furthered Fox's reputation for social relevance.

"All About Eve" (1950) Leading off a Turner Classic Movies salute to 20th Century Fox on Wednesday, Oct. 6 – and coordinating with the release of a new book about the studio's history by Scott Eyman – this backstage drama finds an actress (Bette Davis) threatened by a devotee (Anne Baxter). The film was written and directed by Joseph L. Mankiewicz, a great-uncle of TCM host Ben Mankiewicz.

"The Day the Earth Stood Still" (1951) This science-fiction landmark from director Robert Wise brings an alien (Michael Rennie) to Earth with a warning ... and a large and lethal robot named Gort. "The Robe" (1953) This historical epic about ancient Rome has a special place in film history for its introduction of CinemaScope, the widescreen process then intended to retain theater audiences as television started to take hold and lean them at home started to take hold and keep them at home.

"The Longest Day" (1962) Former Fox chief Darryl F. Zanuck made a huge investment, in every sense, in this D-Day dramatization that seemed to feature every major male star of the time.

"The Sound of Music" (1965) The Rodgers & Hammerstein musical about the von Trapp family and governess Maria (Julie Andrews), one of the most popular of all movie musicals, saved Fox financially after the huge cost of "Cleopatra."

"Planet of the Apes" (1968) The sci-fi tale of astronauts stranded in a world ruled by simians launched a hugely successful franchise.

"Patton" (1970) George C. Scott won – and film history – made famously refused – a best actor Oscar for his and Kate Winslet.

portrayal of the controversially independent World War II general.

"M*A*S*H" (1970) Director Robert Altman's Korean War comedy remains arguably the most irreverent military movie ever ... and set the stage for an iconic, Fox-produced television series.

"The French Connection" (1971) This gritty police drama from director William Friedkin earned Gene Hackman an Oscar as drug-dealer-chasing New York cop "Popeye" Doyle.

"Star Wars" (1977) After other studios turned it down, Fox struck an enduring gold mine with George Lucas' fantasy of "a galaxy far, far away."

"Die Hard" (1988) Action movies were reinvented by this Bruce Willis vehicle, which set the template for a hero trapped by enemies in a building/plane/ train/store/etc.

"Titanic" (1997) Co-produced with Paramount Pictures, director James Cameron's saga of the ill-fated voyage – one of the biggest money-makers in film history – made superstars of Leonardo DiCaprio and Kate Winslet
