Brandy, Eve, Naturi Naughton and

Reunited singers are the 'Queens' of new ABC drama

Television is bringing another band back together ... or, more precisely, another female singing group.

Not long after Peacock's "Girls5eva" reunited former vocal partners, so does ABC's drama series "Queens," premiering Tuesday, Oct. 19. Music stars Brandy and Eve play, along with Naturi Naughton ("Power") and Nadine Velazquez ("Flight"), members of a '90s hip-hop group who try to recapture their shared former fame. Each woman walks a different path now, though, making their reunion bid shaky. Taylor Sele portrays their manager, who also handles the currently popular Lil Muffin (Pepi Sonuga).

"I think our show is about sisterhood and family," says "Queens" creator and executive producer Zahir McGhee. "You fight with your family, and these are people that have been brought back together after a long period of time. There's always going to be arguments. There's always going to be a hierarchy that exists, and shifting, but we do want to be on the friendship more than rivalry or bickering or backstabbing."

Since its main characters' fame hails from the '90s, "Queens" invokes that decade significantly. "We've lived that time," ex-"The Talk" co-host Eve reasons. "We come from that time, so it's important for us, and there definitely will be moments from those times. When people listen to the music, when they see our outfits, when they see our hair, everything ... we want them to be transported back to that moment. It's all about the authenticity."

For Brandy, who previously had a healthy series run with the sitcom "Moesha," it's also all about getting to fulfill her major career aims. "You're born with this passion," she reflects, "and you go after the things that you dream about. I've always wanted to sing. I've always wanted to inspire people, and I just felt that that was my purpose, so I went after it. And this show 'Queens,' is such a blessing, because I get to do everything that I love to do all in one show, with amazing people. I'm just so excited. I can't even believe this is happening."

Swizz Beatz serves as executive music producer of "Queens," and his mission is to make the show's soundtrack as vital as the drama – with each of those elements enhancing the other.

"It's almost like reliving your younger life again," he maintains. "I actually was doing this in the '90s, so to come back and do it in 2021, it just feels good. It feels natural. And being that it's a show, I get to have extra fun. I don't have to be so serious with the music. We can put risky things in there and make the characters come out even more, so it's been a fun journey."

Checking in with SCOTT FOLEY

Though "The Big Leap" largely is about dancing, Scott Foley readily admits he's not a dancer.

Thus, the veteran of such other series as "Scandal" and "Felicity" is content to play the producer of a competition show aimed at casting an updated staging of "Swan Lake" in Fox's new Monday drama series. Foley maintains that he doesn't mind leaving the more literal moves to such fellow stars as Teri Polo, Piper Perabo and Jon Rudnitsky, and relative newcomers including Simone Recasner and Raymond Cham Jr.

"Not only am I mediocre at best at dancing, but that's sort of the motto of my whole life ... mediocrity," Foley says with tongue in cheek. "It rules everything I do." The actor-producer also notes, "No one's reached out to me (to compete on) any of the reality shows. And I'm a little upset by it. I'll get over it, though."

If indeed he is upset, Foley can channel that into his "Big Leap" character Nick Blackburn, who's not above manipulating others to attain his goals. "I had a reckoning where I sort of realized, at least in my own mind, that Nick is sort of like Darth Vader in the making of the show," reflects Foley. "He's not always the evil guy, but his intentions are not necessarily the best.

"I have felt, if I'm being honest, a little left-out that I don't do the dancing, but I think it's actually benefited the character because it creates a bit of separation between myself and the rest of the cast. Which, I hope, is apparent on screen. I think it actually adds to the drama of the show."

Birthdate: July 15, 1972

Birthplace: Kansas City, Mo.

Current residence: Los Angeles

Marital status: Married to actress Marika Dominczyk; they have three children. (Foley previously was married to Jennifer Garner.)

Other television credits include: "Whiskey Cavalier," "Scandal," "Final Vision," "Insecure," "Goldie & Bear," "Undateable," "Scandal," "The Goodwin Games," "True Blood," "Grey's Anatomy," "Cougar Town," "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit," "The Last Templar," "The Unit," "House," "Jack & Bobby," "A.U.S.A.," "Scrubs," "Felicity," "Dawson's Creek," "Step by Step," "Sweet Valley High"

Movie credits include: "Naked," "Let's Kill Ward's Wife" (also written, produced and directed by Foley), "Below," "Stealing Time," "Scream 3"

Foodie TV: Culinary series you can stream this week

It stands to reason that with the explosion in streaming services would come a similar proliferation of culinary content. And indeed, that has been the case.

At no time has there been more foodie shows, films and documentaries out there for your consumption, thus rendering cable and broadcast mainstays such as Food Network, Cooking Channel and PBS mere slices of an ever-growing culinary programming pie (pardon the pun). And it's not just on Netflix, Amazon and Hulu but all across the web. The following are a few of the newest offerings.

"The Next Thing You Eat" (premieres Thursday, Oct. 21, on Hulu): Chef David Chang is your host of this six-episode documentary series from filmmaker Morgan Neville that explores the cataclysmic changes happening all around us that affect the way we'll eat in the future. Chang and a diverse cast of characters look at what's ahead, ranging from burger-flipping robots and artificial intelligence making decisions to insect farms and lab-grown fish.

"Stanley Tucci: Searching for Italy" (Available now, HBO Max): The Oscar-nominated actor (who, incidentally, won an Emmy for this show) acts as tour guide in this CNN original series that follows him as he traverses one of the world's great food countries and takes in the secrets and delights of its regional cuisines. He also explores how Italian cooking offers a window into Italy's rich history and culture.

"Baking Impossible" (Available now, Netflix): This recently premiered competition series pairs creative and innovative bakers with crack engineers to make creations that not only challenge the imagination, but are delicious and can withstand engineering stress tests. Think: an edible boat that floats or an edible skyscraper that can remain intact during a simulated quake.

"Foodie Road Trip With Skye Estroff" (Available now, Plex): Small towns are where it's at – at least in the view of food expert and host Estroff, who brings viewers to some of the most revered foodie towns across the country to discover what makes their restaurants unique and to hear their stories.

"Tiny Food Fight" (Available now, discovery+): As the title suggests, this competition series tasks contestants with making dishes such as pancakes and sandwiches on a smaller scale with themes ranging from fair foods and birthday parties to tiny version of food from around the world. Comedian and social media star Mamrie Hart is the host.

"The Great British Baking Show: Season 9" (Available now, Netflix): The new season brings in a fresh crop of amateur bakers to compete in a series of challenges in the hopes of impressing judges Paul Hollywood and Prue Leith.

Lawrence takes his lumps early in rookie campaign

He came to the NFL as one of the most vaunted quarterbacks in recent memory but Trevor Lawrence has certainly taken his lumps.

Indeed, three games into his rookie campaign with the Jacksonville Jaguars, the Clemson product and top overall pick in the 2021 Draft has looked every bit like the green signal caller he is, and a major reason why the Jags were winless in September.

In the season's first month, Lawrence completed 64 of 118 passes (a 54.2 percent rate) for 669 yards with five touchdowns and seven interceptions, making him only the fifth rookie QB in history to throw multiple picks in his first three games. He's in good company, though, as two of those are Hall of Famers – Troy Aikman (1989) and Peyton Manning (1998). And he has shown much reason for hope.

One encouraging sign is that he's not afraid to take chances, as evidenced by a flea flicker he attempted in Week 3 against the Arizona Cardinals that wound up in the hands of Cards' defensive back Byron Murphy, who returned it 29 yards for a touchdown.

Lawrence and the Jaguars can be seen in action the morning of Sunday, Oct. 17, when they play the Miami Dolphins at London's Tottenham Hotspur Stadium in a game airing on CBS.

The STREAM Scene

Where all the top choices can be found in one place!

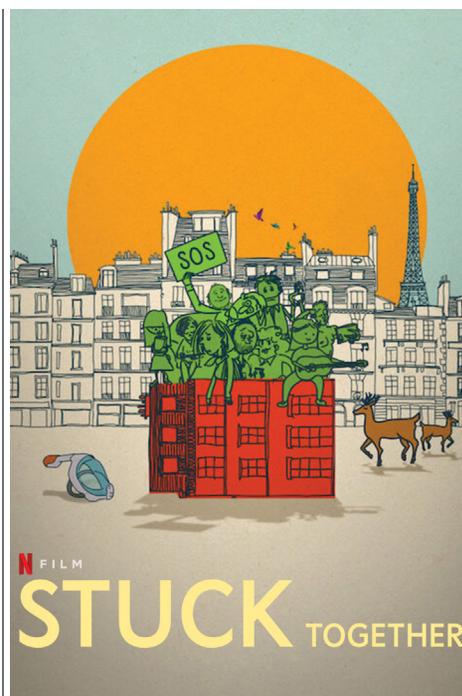

“Movie: Lansky”

Harvey Keitel (“Bugsy”) does solid work in director Eytan Rockaway’s (“Angel of Mine”) otherwise lackluster 2021 biographical drama in which he stars as the notorious gangster, who late in his life tells his story to the broke writer (Sam Worthington, “Avatar”) penning his biography. John Magaro, AnnaSophia Robb, Minka Kelly and David Elliott are also in the cast.

“Castle”

The streaming service comes forth with all eight seasons of this 2009-16 ABC crime dramedy about a blocked mystery novelist (Nathan Fillion) who teams with a homicide detective (Stana Katic) as they solve unusual crimes in New York City. Jon Huertas, Seamus Dever, Tamala Jones and Susan Sullivan are also in the cast.

“Movie: Stuck Together”

From France and director Dany Boon (“The Valet,” “Joyeux Noel”) comes this film comedy about residents of a Paris apartment building whose best and worst qualities come to the surface during a three-month pandemic-induced lockdown. Boon, Yvan Attal, Francois Damiens, Liliane Rovère, Laurence Arné and Jorge Calvo head the cast. (ORIGINAL)

“Disney’s Magic Bake-Off” (Oct. 20)

Dara Reneé (“High School Musical: The Musical: The Series”) and Issac Ryan Brown (“Raven’s Home”) host this reality competition series that combines the fun of baking and the impressive ingenuity of several young pastry chefs, who divide into three teams of two and race against the clock to create cakes inspired by a classic Walt Disney TV or movie offering.

celebrity q&a

Vanessa Lachey OF 'NCIS: HAWAI'I' ON CBS

BY JAY BOBBIN

What are your thoughts about playing team leader and family woman Jane Tennant as you film "NCIS: Hawai'i" on location?

To see her on paper, I think, is a lot more daunting. This is actually my life; I have my three kids here now. (On one recent day,) for example, I went to work at 6:30 in the morning and I came home and it was around 9:45 (p.m.). And my oldest son was up, and I walked right in and I put him back down to bed, because he had gotten up from a bad dream.

Then I had to do the dishes, and then I studied my lines for (the next day's) work, so it's about juggling your family as well as your work. And for Jane, it's her family as well as her country and work, and I love that.

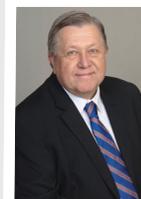

Do you appreciate being the performer to play a woman leading an NCIS team?

For me to be the one to represent that, I'm honored. I'm humbled. It's something I don't take lightly, and I'm grateful every day. But it's not just me ... it is this team. They complete me, not to sound like a cheesy TV line or movie line. Truly, together we are "NCIS: Hawai'i." I think what it's going to do is just kind of normalize women in this position.

Does your own background help with your "NCIS: Hawai'i" work?

My childhood was as an Air Force brat, so there's just layers of the military that are in my blood – the respect, the honor. I understand the sacrifice. But we all got to visit NCIS here on the base. We've all been to Pearl Harbor. We all got to sit there on the 4th of July and really take in what it means to be here, to be representing the Navy and their presence. So, I think while we take our past into our characters, we all are feeling the true honor and love of our country in our roles.

A star, namely Kevin Costner, was born with 'The Untouchables'

One of the films that made Kevin Costner a star also is one of the best movie versions of a television series to date.

"The Untouchables" — which EPIX shows Tuesday, Oct. 19, while it streams this month on Hulu — was part of a one-two punch, along with "No Way Out," for Kevin Costner in the summer of 1987. Robert Stack had major TV success from 1959 to 1963 with the role of Prohibition-era agent Eliot Ness, but with the assistance of director Brian De Palma and screenwriter David Mamet, Costner redefined the true-life law enforcer as a more vulnerable figure in his pursuit of legendary mobster Al Capone.

The latter part gives Costner a hugely formidable acting match in Robert De Niro, and though their scenes together are limited, the impact of those moments is palpable. That's not the only case of a veteran actor making a big impact here, either: Sean Connery earned an Oscar as Jimmy Malone, a streetwise Chicago cop who gives Ness a big advantage by joining his small and specially selected team.

Andy Garcia and Charles Martin Smith are the other members of Ness' so-called "Untouchables," and along with Costner and Connery, the unlikely combination of crimebusters gives the picture a lot of its appeal. There's great pleasure to be had from seeing Connery's crusty Malone educate Costner's relatively genteel Ness in "the Chicago way" of dealing with enemies, while there's just as much enjoyment in seeing Ness use crafty psychology to turn things his way ... which isn't to say he doesn't resort to brute force when deemed necessary.

The sequence that "The Untouchables" is most noted for remains stunning to watch now. A shootout unfolds on the steps of Union Station as a baby carriage — complete with adorable infant inside — bounces downward amid a hail of bullets, and the choreography among the players, the cinematography by Stephen H. Burum and the editing by Jerry Greenberg and Bill Pankow are remarkable. The scene has been much-spoofed over the years, a measure of just how iconic it is; noteworthy, too, is the music score by the legendary Ennio Morricone.

Kevin Costner in "The Untouchables"

Both the movie and TV versions of "The Untouchables" have roots in the memoir Ness wrote (with collaborator Oscar Fraley) about his exploits, and though dramatic license is taken in both cases, the results are true to the spirit of the lawman's crusade to clean up the Windy City. And while he's had his hits and misses, in both the independent and big-studio realms, the film stands as one of the triumphs of De Palma's career.

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Cristela Alonzo

OF 'LEGENDS OF THE HIDDEN TEMPLE' ON THE CW

What appealed to you about "Legends of the Hidden Temple"?

First of all I watched it growing up. And one of the things that I really love about the show is that I, myself, am a big nerd, and I love that this show kind of celebrates a different demographic that we don't necessarily get to cater to a lot, which is people that like to be athletic but also need to be smartened, get quizzed on things. It's kind of like a fun journey. As a kid, I loved shows like that. You know, PBS was a big part of my life, too, because I always loved programming that you could learn something from but also have fun with. ...

So we're getting a new generation to see the show but also this is for people who grew up loving it, too. What I like about the show format is that it's very similar to how it started, the original format. But it also kind of became its own iteration and it became its own version of now, so that people that aren't familiar with it can also get into it.

Have you been tempted to try negotiating the course?

Yes! I couldn't do it. I wasn't allowed to do it because there were still — you know, first season they were trying to figure it out so there was a lot of stuff that was happening just to make sure that it was safe and everything, that it was as good as it could be.

I wasn't able to do it this season but if we get a second season, oh man, you know I'm doing it right away. I mean, I am excited for it. This is what I want to do. And I think that's what makes the whole show for me so fun, is that I really have fun with it. And when you see the show, I think you can tell how happy I am to be there.

'My Garden of a Thousand Bees' kicks off 40th season of PBS' 'Nature'

The pandemic forced many of us to adapt and find new ways of doing things while in quarantine, including the maker of a documentary upcoming on PBS' "Nature."

In "My Garden of a Thousand Bees," premiering Wednesday, Oct 20 (check local listings), as the first installment of the series' 40th season, wildlife photographer Martin Dohrn uses lockdown to his advantage as he turns his camera on the bees in the backyard of his urban Bristol, England, home.

Using lenses he forged on his kitchen table, Dohrn captures the astounding behavior of the more than 60 bee species living lives on his tiny property that are far more complicated than anyone had ever known.

"What Martin had discovered," explains longtime "Nature" executive producer Fred Kaufman, "was these far more complicated lives than we could think of and sort of the nastiness that takes place in the garden. I mean, some of the stuff is brutal. It's kill or be killed; it's eat or be eaten. It's male searching for and jumping on female bees. It's everybody trying to steal everybody else's nest and lay their eggs in it."

"There's a scene where a bee notices this cutout hole, an idea nest in the wood and tries to go in and all of a sudden this huge spider comes out to grab it."

BY GEORGE DICKIE

Martin Dohrn

And you know, the spider's in hiding and waiting to ambush. So it's this drama that's extraordinary and nasty."

To film the bees in action, Dohrn set up cameras in his yard and let them run, and the moments he records are incredible – bees laying tiny eggs, spiders feasting on male flower bees and a female yellow-faced bee attacking a wasp to protect her nest. He realizes that these creatures have their own individual personalities and becomes intrigued by one wood-carving leafcutter bee in particular that he dubs Nicky.

"He actually built a relationship with a bee that he was kind of watching and documenting," Kaufman says, "and he knew where she would build her nest and he really paid attention to her movements and everything. And in the end, it's kind of this revelatory 'Oh my God! I didn't realize there's so much drama that happens in the garden.' ... (It) is just extraordinary – the drama, the intricacies, the battles."

Tom Bergeron may be getting back in the game

Q: I hear that Tom Bergeron is coming back to television. When will that happen? – Mitch Donner, Providence, R.I.

A: The deal wasn't 100-percent done at the time this column was written, but the former "Dancing With the Stars" host has taped the pilot for a new version of the classic game show "Tic-Tac-Dough." Its chances of being picked up to series would seem good, since NBC Universal and veteran game producer Harry Friedman – who oversaw "Wheel of Fortune" and "Jeopardy!" for many years – also are involved.

Bergeron surely knows how to run games that incorporate tic-tac-toe boards, since he presided over a revival of "Hollywood Squares." If the new project goes forward, he'll be succeeding a number of people who hosted previous versions of "Tic-Tac-Dough," starting with the 1950s original's Jack Barry, who co-created the show. Barry was followed by Gene Rayburn, Bill Wendell, Jay Jackson, Win Elliot, Wink Martindale, Jim Caldwell and Patrick Wayne (one of John Wayne's sons).

Shirley Jones and Gordon MacRae of "Oklahoma!"

Yul Brynner of "The King and I"

Julie Andrews of "The Sound of Music"

BEST RODGERS & HAMMERSTEIN MOVIES

"State Fair" (1945) Also filmed in 1962, this was the only musical Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II wrote specifically for the movies. The plot takes a family to the Iowa State Fair, where "It Might As Well Be Spring" romance-wise, particularly for the relatives played by Dick Haymes and Jeanne Crain.

"Oklahoma!" (1955) Scenes filmed in the vast expanse of the open plains (in Arizona, ironically) allowed this film to show off the widescreen technique Todd-AO. Gordon MacRae and (in her first film) Shirley Jones were so well-partnered as Curly and Laurey, they would be matched again in another Rodgers & Hammerstein-based movie adaptation.

"The King and I" (1956) After his initial stage run with the project, Yul Brynner reprised the role of a lifetime – the commanding King of Siam, whose views are softened by schoolteacher Anna (Deborah Kerr) – in the venture that earned him an Oscar for best actor. Also featuring Rita Moreno, this leads a night of Rodgers & Hammerstein attractions Wednesday, Oct. 20, on Turner Classic Movies.

"Carousel" (1956) Though Frank Sinatra originally was supposed to be the male lead, Gordon MacRae ended up being reteamed with Shirley Jones in another musical about star-crossed young lovers. "If I Loved You" and "You'll Never Walk Alone" are among the song standards encompassed by the score.

"South Pacific" (1958) Location filming also was of huge benefit here, with Mitzi Gaynor (though Doris Day was approached about the role) as Nellie Forbush, the spirited nurse who vows she'll "Wash That Man Right Outa My Hair" after becoming involved with the enigmatic Emile de Becque (Rossano Brazzi). Nevertheless, "Some Enchanted Evening" still underscores their relationship. Great trivia: One of the Navy men is played by Tom Laughlin, aka man-of-action "Billy Jack" in a later series of films.

"Flower Drum Song" (1961) Veteran movie producer Ross Hunter ("Pillow Talk," "Airport") oversaw this take on a stage musical that was based on a novel revolving around romance in San Francisco's Chinatown community. Such longtime acting staples as Miyoshi Umeki, James Shigeta, Nancy Kwan, Jack Soo and James Hong are among the stars of the project, whose music score includes "I Enjoy Being a Girl."

"The Sound of Music" (1965) Hardly anyone has grown up without knowing the screen version of the classic story of nun-in-training turned Von Trapp family governess Maria. That role, along with Mary Poppins, has kept Julie Andrews a favorite performer over several generations. The film and its director, Robert Wise, earned Oscars ... but Christopher Plummer, the film's Captain von Trapp, was a bit prickly about his association with the picture over the years. However, he eventually professed his affection for it.

"The Oratorio" (PBS — documentary premiere, Nov. 5) Academy Award-winning filmmaker Martin Scorsese looks back at a seismic musical moment in 1826 that marked the beginning of a cultural awakening in America. The occasion? A one-night-only performance in St. Patrick's Old Cathedral, Scorsese's home church in the Little Italy section of New York. The presentation marked the arrival of Italian opera in the New World. This documentary presents the backstory to that event, an incredible chronicle that involves Mozart's most celebrated librettist, opera's first acknowledged diva and a freed slave turned hairdresser.

"Dickinson: Season 3" (Apple TV+ — season premiere, Nov. 5) Season 3 of this original comedy finds Emily (Hailee Steinfeld) in her most productive period as an artist, though that is threatened by the Civil War and an equally divisive battle within her own family. Guest stars this round include Ziwe, Billy Eichner and Chloe Fineman, joining returning regulars Toby Huss, Adrian Blake and Jane Krakowski.
