

ROCKETS ADVANCE TO STATE QUARTERFINALS

Lewisburg names finalists

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

The final candidates to become the next Lewisburg City Manager have a decidedly local flavor. The Lewisburg City Council met in a special called meeting prior to last Tuesday's monthly session to select interview candidates from the 17 applicants for the position.

Lewisburg Councilman Bam Haislip, County Commissioner Sheldon Davis, and Kevin Owens, currently employed by the city of Birmingham, Ala., received sufficient votes to move to the next round.

Haislip and Davis were the only candidates to be nominated by all four councilmen taking part, Haislip did not attend the meeting as he was under consideration.

The council plans to interview the three finalists on Thursday, November 18, beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Current City Manager Buck Beard is retiring in January, and the council hopes to have a replacement named in time to transition into the office with Beard's assistance.

The following council meeting dealt with a sizable but routine agenda.

Councilmen approved the annexation of an approximate nine acre parcel at 1207 Yell Road planned for development.

The council also voted to dissolve the current Parks and Recreation advisory board, while reserving the possibility of re-establishing the body in the future with clearer guidelines and by-laws.

The board in its current form has not managed the quorum necessary to conduct business in over a year.

Lewisburg Fire Department Chief Larry Williams introduced the department's newly appointed assistant chief, Drew Hawkins, to the council.

Williams also informed the council that his department has been approved to hold a fire candidate course beginning in March.

A similar series of classes, at no cost to participants, held several years ago resulted in 14 of the 15 graduates of the class being offered paid on call positions with the city, increasing opportunities for full time employment as a career fire fighter.

Williams noted that as many as a third of his current roster would be eligible to retire within

Marshall County turned out on Thursday to honor Veterans Day and all of the men and women who have served the nation. This year marked the first parade held in observance of the holiday, open to any county veteran who wished to participate.

Veterans Day Parade

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

Marshall County celebrated the nation's veterans on Thursday with a fine turnout for the county's first ever parade, despite dreary weather.

The Marshall County High School Marching Band and the Forrest School Marching Band book ended a procession of county vets from many different eras, welcomed by crowds along the route.

Rain, which had threatened all morning, held off until the parade finished its route at the square, although as a precaution, the traditional observance moved from the courthouse lawn into the Dixie Theatre.

The traditional ceremony, courtesy of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, featured retired Lieutenant General John Riggs as the keynote speaker.

Riggs spoke upon the service and sacrifices made by all 17 million living American veterans, with special mention to the four Marshall County World War II veterans in attendance.

"You have never failed America and you never will," said Riggs. "When you were needed you were there and when you were there you were needed."

The addition of a parade to the annual observance has been years in the making and represents a positive addition to a solemn day.

State Fire Marshal at South Marshall VFD

The Commissioner of Commerce and Insurance and State Fire Marshal Carter Lawrence and other staff from the State Fire Marshal's Office paid a visit to the South Marshall Volunteer Fire Department on Monday morning. The visit was the first on a tour of area volunteer fire departments to deliver recovery supplies to departments and to discuss local issues and state initiatives to support local VFDs. Two-thirds of Tennessee fire fighters are volunteers and depend on donations and fundraisers for equipment and training needs and volunteer responders for fire and medical emergencies. Volunteer departments across the nation are facing challenges with fewer volunteers willing to serve and the costs replacing aging equipment.

Young harpist at the Dixie

By Scott Pearson
Associate Editor

The Dixie Theatre has hosted many movies and many stage productions in its history but Saturday evening will see a somewhat less common performance.

Marshall County resident Aliyah Wenneker will present a solo performance on harp.

The 16-year-old high school junior will perform a range of compositions for the harp, from classical to more modern pieces.

Aliyah's passion for the instrument is clear, and she is excited to show that the harp is a much more versatile instrument than its stereotypical image.

After starting with piano at age 8, she came to the harp fairly recently, when she was 13, although the instrument has been apart of her family's story for generations.

Aliyah's grand mother gifted her a starter harp, saying that her mother, Aliyah's great grandmother, has always wanted to play the instrument but had never had the opportunity.

After several months, Aliyah started playing the instrument and hasn't looked back, taking lessons from a teacher in Franklin.

She said that she has performed from some churches in the area but looks forward to her first solo performance.

She will be auditioning for the Governor's School for the Arts this summer and hopes to include harp performance and music in her future college studies.

The performance will be Saturday at 6 p.m. at the Dixie Theatre in Lewisburg and should last approximately an hour.

Admission is free of charge.

How will you mark the 400th anniversary of Thanksgiving?

By Danny Tyree

Last year the media went into a frenzy over the 400th anniversary of the Mayflower's arrival in North America, but the festivities were just beginning.

TYREE

This Thanksgiving marks four centuries since the 1621 harvest festival held by the half of the Plymouth Colony that survived that cruel first winter.

("Forget corn mazes and hayrides! I'm bobbing for antibiotics!")

What a milestone! Even though our gaiety may be muted by acknowledgment of the injustices done to indigenous peoples since that fateful shared meal, this still calls for a large-scale commemoration.

Perhaps you could ponder the 400 greatest Thanksgiving-related quotations, such as "Pumpkin spice isn't everything; it's the only thing" or "God must have loved the common man, because he made so many ways to re-gift fruitcake" or "Genius is one percent inspiration and 99 percent telling your mother-in-law that your daughter's sleazy new beau loves anecdotes about bunions and varicose veins."

Maybe you could reminisce over the 400 greatest Thanksgiving-related song lyrics, such as "Stairway to the upstairs bedroom where the dog has shed on everyone's coats," "You can't always baste what you want," "Smells like leftovers spirit," "I still haven't found the interstate exit I'm looking for," and "People get ready, there's a nap a-comin'."

Maybe you could explore the 400 biggest historical inaccuracies in Thanksgiving pageants. The Pilgrims' menu and the attire of the Native American guests leap to mind immediately, but I'm sure you can find other examples. (You doubtless always harbored suspicions about Great-uncle Bob's insistence on using blackface to portray the Wampanoag Nation. And his compliments to the cooks, such as "The cranberry sauce was delectable, and the white meat is superior.")

How about taking a stab at writing down your 400 favorite Thanksgiving memories? Maybe your fondest recollection is of eating with your cousins at the children's table and boasting about the time when you would be all grown up and could do whatever you wanted -- pending the approval of your future spouse, your employer, an assortment of restraining orders and the doctor who is strangely fixated on head-turning and coughing.

Most importantly, try verbalizing 400 things for which you're thankful. (I'm preparing to launch a year-round thankfulness spot on my Facebook page, "Tyree's Tyrades." Please check it out.)

Yes, despite our problems, we have a lot to be thankful for, including electrical appliances, modern plumbing and vast online resources. I mean, sites such as ancestry.com let you trace your illustrious lineage all the way back to New England's upper crust, all from the comfort of your parents' basement.

Let's not forget that the "dressing versus stuffing" holiday war hasn't involved tactical nukes -- yet.

Ah, but many of us take Mother Nature and the marvels of science for granted. Someone could make a fortune opening Ingrates R Us franchises. ("Yeah, well, what have you done for me LATE-LY, Jonas Salk?")

Seriously, even those of us who still credit a Supreme Being with our comforts have gotten spoiled by The Way Things Work In the 21st Century.

"Your blessings are very important to us. All our thoughts are currently focused on other things. You'll get your prayers of thanks when the first spare moment is available. If you'd prefer, you may self-scan our warm wishes."

Yikes! Anybody compiling a list of the 400 species of locusts waiting to be unleashed on us?

When Thanksgiving and Christmas collide

By Jase Graves

These days, we're all used to walking through retail stores in October and dodging Christmas displays of inflatable Baby Yoda yard art while we're still trying to find the perfect Halloween pumpkins to decompose on our front porches.

The real holiday season mashup controversy, though, emerges in November, when we try to determine when it's appropriate to start slipping our disks by dragging out the Christmas décor and festooning the living room with enough sparkly baubles to trigger our glitter jitters. Do we wait until we finish digesting our Thanksgiving giblets or move on into full-blown Yuletide beast mode?

I say go ahead and get jiggy with your tree trimming. Because let's face it. Thanksgiving, while a worthy exercise in expressing gratitude for our blessings by replacing all of our bodily fluids with gravy, is a little like a pre-game warmup for Christmas. In fact, you're likely to have some Thanksgiving leftovers mutating in your refrigerator when December 25 rolls around.

So why not combine the celebrations into a giant two-month carb-laden extravaganza? Besides, the two holidays already have a lot in common.

For instance, both involve eating until you doubt your self-worth and your digestive skills. Not only that, but we enjoy some of the same foods at Thanksgiving and Christmas--including that cranberry sauce that comes out of the can looking like a sunburned segment of a giant earthworm.

Both holidays also involve experiencing an entire year's allotment of family irritation within the space of around twelve hours. No wonder grandmother lives over the river and through the woods.

And that particular song reminds me that both holidays have classic Charlie Brown specials-the best! (I still think Snoopy deserves a good old-fashioned neutering.)

Most importantly, these celebrations give us a chance to thank the Lord for the greatest gift ever given to humanity. And I really don't think He gives a rip that Starbucks starts selling the Peppermint Mocha Frappuccino the first week of November.

I realize this philosophy will draw the ire of Thanksgiving purists who relegate Santa, Rudolph, Frosty, the Grinch, Scrooge, Ralphie in his pink bunny pajamas, Buddy the Elf, and Cousin Eddie in his bath robe to holiday quarantine until the clock strikes midnight after Turkey Day. (Ironically, these are probably the same folks who keep a forgotten string of elderly Christmas lights clinging to their houses for dear life year round.)

I've always loved both holidays and never could resist humming a few Christmas carols while unpacking our ceramic turkey salt and pepper shakers in early November. I've even been known to start putting out Christmas decorations, a few at a time, in the run-up to Thanksgiving, and no one seems to be bothered by it. (Then again, I'm pretty sure I could install a life-sized replica of Cousin Eddie's dilapidated RV in the middle of the living room, and my three teenage daughters wouldn't notice -- unless it interfered with the WiFi.)

Yes, I agree that Thanksgiving is an important occasion and deserving of its own traditions (especially the pie), but I also believe in bipartisanship, and if Santa wants a seat at my Thanksgiving table, he is always welcome to an extra slice of canned cranberry sauce.

Should churches have a dress code?

By Danny Tyree

Where do you reside on the "holier than thou" versus "holier than thou" spectrum?

I make only passing reference to squabbles over "proper" church attire in my 2020 motivational book "Yes, Your Butt Still Belongs in Church" (still available in paperback and Kindle formats on Amazon), but the subject is indeed divisive.

Between the judgmental churchgoers who second-guess the wardrobe choices of fellow worshippers and the slightly paranoid parishioners who ASSUME they're under a microscope, unease often permeates the fabric of church life.

Some church leaders do a lot of hemming and hawing about their expectations. ("Harumph, no, we don't have an official list of specific prohibitions for you. Just like we don't have an official, specific special corner of hell reserved for you, but...")

Good taste and self-respect should reign supreme, but some traditionalists do take it to an extreme. Some of these people should spend more time clinging to the Old Rugged Cross instead of clinging to the 1958 Montgomery Ward catalog clothing section.

Yes, it's easy to get caught up in memories when you constantly practice reciting lists such as the 7 Deadly Sins: "Pride, envy, gluttony, denim, flip-flops, spaghetti straps..."

On the other hand, some dare-devils dress in a way that just invites panic attacks. When they're within proximity of the baptistry, you can't help but imagine them shouting, "Cannonball!"

Some offenders go the ragamuffin route, but others are more into ostentatious displays of wealth. ("Preacher says you can't take it with you...so MY bling is getting a workout every Christmas and Easter! More money than God! More money than God! But less patience. Please look!")

Perhaps church life would be more harmonious if Bible class teachers clarified principles better. ("No, it's 'an eye for an eye,' not 'a stink eye for a stink eye!'")

Better enunciation might eliminate some unfortunate mix-ups. ("It's Song of Solomon, not Thong of Solomon!")

Most true Christians will not object to someone being a tad relaxed or laid-back, but laid-back soon degrades into downright gelatinous! ("Never mind the communion tray. I think I've still got some crumbs from last time in my PJ bottoms. Yum.")

I was a generation too late for the "ubiquitous hat era" and I gradually got away from neckties a decade or so ago; but I do try to shave, pick out a decent shirt and don some non-distressed slacks. I acknowledge that more free-spirited people are focused on "sticking it to the Man." Of course, if the Man is a kindly old double-amputee veteran, the chip on the shoulder loses some of its appeal. ("Thanks for your service...and the birthday card...and the job referral...but the Cheech & Chong shirt stays, Greatest Generationer!")

I'm not making excuses for the easily tempted, but some attention-seekers routinely distract from important lessons with their provocative attire. The minister is making a point about Noah and the Flood, while half the menfolk are wondering how to make it Rain Dollar Bills for 40 days and 40 nights.

Ideally, congregations should welcome even the most inappropriately dressed visitors. And visitors should err on the side of caution.

Let's put our rancor and insecurities in the garbage heap.

Hey, there's also a 1958 Montgomery Ward catalog in the garbage heap!

"Yeah, that pelvis looked like it was about to get too much action from a Hula Hoop! Can't be too careful!"

*Sigh*

MARSHALL COUNTY DEVOTIONAL PAGE

"Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons (children) of God... Beloved, now are we the sons (children) of God," - 1 John 3:1a,2a

Sometimes in life our circumstances wear us out physically, emotionally, mentally, financially, and spiritually. In those moments it becomes easy to develop a victim mentality. When that occurs we allow life's circumstance to dictate who we are and how we will act. From that mentality we get caught up in the rat-race of this world and we tend to believe that every day is a dead-end repeat of the day before. Yet, we are not our circumstances, we are not the disease, and we are not our occupation, but rather we are the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus (Galatians 3:26).

Being children of God is not a hopeful fairytale or wishful thinking, but rather it is an absolute promise base upon God's word. So according to God's word is how we ought to see ourselves and His promises should dictate to us how we shall live. That is in the background of what John wrote in our opening verses. "Behold, what manner of love." This kind of love is something to "behold" because it is not a selfish "do for me first and then I will love you" kind of love, but rather it is a selfless, sacrificial love of the will. This love is the most tender of all because God the Father, out of His sovereign and free will, adopted us into His family with the greatest privilege and honor of calling Him – Father!

When we remember that we were spiritually sinful orphans and how God in mercy came to us in unconditional love to bring us into a love relationship with Himself. We should be the most thankful of all people on the planet. This special kind of love to "behold," brought us into the family of God, so that we may be regarded and treated as children of the Most High.

There are many things to be thankful for during the holiday season, but do not take lightly God's love for you. This great love to behold is awesome, both as to quantity and quality. The quantity of this love stretches from eternity to eternity. It has no beginning and certainly it has no end, simply because it comes forth from God and we know that God is love (1 John 4:16), and that He loved us first (1 John 4:19). While the quality of this love includes the riches and glory of heaven itself, whereby as children of God we are made joint-heirs with Jesus Christ (Romans 8:17).

Having this promise that we are now the children of God. That is the greatest thing to be thankful for. You see, the great God has given us a great salvation, by which He is greatly to be praised. May we be reminded to be "Thankful children" each and every day!

Rockets edge Panthers, move on to state quarterfinals

By Anthony S. Puca
Sports Writer

The Forrest Rockets hosted a familiar foe in Friday night's second-round Class 2A playoff game as the Lewis County Panthers travelled to the Murrey E. Holton Memorial Field in Chapel Hill.

The two squads were region foes for four years until the most recent realignment.

The Panthers had held a 3-1 advantage over that time span, including a 7-0 win last season that secured the region title for Lewis County in the final regular season game at Forrest.

It was the same margin of victory again, but this time it was the Rockets who prevailed 13-6 in an old-fashioned slugfest as the two teams combined for 78 rushing attempts in a contest that was affected more and more by the weather as the night moved on.

"It came down to the last play and our kids competed all night long," Forrest coach Eli Stephenson said. "The guys got after it in the first half putting up some points on offense and our defense played well all night long. When you give up just six points, that's a heck of a job and I'm just really proud of the guys."

The Rockets played shutdown defense, turnover-free football, and rushed for 249 yards in the game as Tayton Swift led the way with 74 yards on 13 carries.

Chris Davis rushed the ball 10 times for 65 yards, Brenton Burchell had nine carries for 41 yards, Hunter Bennett added 16 yards on seven runs, McCalister Wilson rushed the ball twice for six yards, and Carson Yates had one carry for one yard.

Inexplicably, none of Forrest's points came in the ground game as two huge Gavin Grissom field goals and a 27-yard touchdown pitch and catch from Hunter Bennett to Brenton Burchell accounted for all 13 points for the home team.

"We played our style of football," Stephenson said. "We preached all week that this was going to be a physical game for four quarters and our kids answered the call."

Senior linebacker Brayden Jones (55) causes a fumble that was recovered by Forrest's Hunter Bennett (14) in the first half of Forrest's big 13-6 win over Lewis County in the second round of the Class 2A playoffs Friday night at Chapel Hill.

Brenton Burchell (9) makes his way through a big hole and a big pickup for the Rockets.

"Our senior leadership up front does a heck of a job—Braden Bowyer, Layne Strasser, Brayden Jones, Colton Cashion—they get them going and it's fun to watch them play."

Grissom nailed a 45-yard field goal with nine minutes remaining in the first quarter and the Burchell-Bennett hookup came about six minutes later for an early 10-0 lead for Forrest.

"When Grissom nailed that kick, I thought it was one of the turning points of the game," Stephenson said.

Meanwhile, the Forrest defense held the Panthers in check with a pair of three-and-outs in the first quarter and the first time Lewis County had the ball in the second quarter, they fumbled it away and Bennett came up with the loose ball.

The senior quarterback proceeded to march the Rockets downfield, burning eight minutes off the clock on an 11-play drive that turned in to three more points on Grissom's second field goal of the game with 1:23 remaining in the first half.

Forrest took the 13-0 lead to the locker room and the Panthers took the second half kickoff and then disaster struck when they coughed up ball on first down and the Rockets recovered the cold rock.

The Rockets could not turn the miscue in to points as Grissom's third field goal try was no good with 7:38 remaining in the third quarter.

Lewis County got some offense going on its next series as they marched 78 yards to the Forrest 6-yard line where they were stopped on a fourth down play.

The sticks were brought in for a measurement and the Panthers came up inches short of the first down and the Rockets took over with 1:52 remaining in the third quarter.

The Rockets went three-and-out, punting on the first play of the fourth quarter.

The Panthers had to score to stay in the ballgame and they responded with a quick, nine-play drive that ended on a Dyer Barnes 15-yard TD catch from freshman quarterback Bryson McDonald.

The extra point try was no good and the Rockets led 13-6 with 8:11 remaining in the contest.

Forrest stayed with the ground game, running the ball nine straight times and burning four minutes and 37 seconds off the clock before a 51-yard Grissom field goal try fell short of the crossbar with 3:34 left in the game.

The cold rain was falling harder and the Panthers managed to get one first down before they went backward.

A few incompletions later, Forrest had the ball in victory formation and they had the win to advance to the state quarterfinal round Friday night at Chapel Hill.

The Rockets (9-3) host Decatur County Riverside (11-1), who trounced Summertown 35-7 at Decaturville.

Forrest has never won a state quarterfinal game and the last time they played in one, it was Riverside that knocked out an unbeaten Rockets' squad in a 20-15 win at Chapel Hill in 2019.

The Forrest defense has been superb the entire season, giving up just 6.9 points per game in its nine wins and they will have to turn in their best effort of the season this week as the Panthers come in averaging 35.8 points per game through 12 games.

"We gotta work on ourselves," Stephenson said. "We have to be more worried about what we are doing other than what the other team is doing. So we are going to continue to follow that philosophy and we will be ready to play Friday night."

The two squads have also met three other times in the playoffs with the Panthers winning in 2011 and 2014 while the Rockets' lone win over Riverside came in a 23-20 first-round win at Chapel Hill in 2013.

Bulldogs held in check at McKenzie as season ends

By Chris Siers
sports@t-g.com

McKenzie — All season long, Cornersville (9-3) has relied on a potent run offense that has allowed the Bulldogs to forge their way to a second-round Class 1A playoff berth.

Unfortunately for Cornersville, that offense was held in check against unbeaten McKenzie (12-0) and the Bulldogs saw their season come to a close following a 28-0 loss at McKenzie on Friday night.

In total, the Bulldogs were limited to just 34 yards of total offense, with just 18 coming on the ground.

McKenzie scored the game's first touchdown in the first quarter when quarterback Jackson Cassidy hit Marquez Taylor on a 15-yard touchdown pass.

The Bulldogs were forced to punt away the following drive, but a Rebel fumble set Cornersville up with prime field position on the Rebels' 28-yard line.

While able to press well inside the McKenzie red zone, Cornersville was held in check and unable to score.

The hosts added a second score just before the half when Taylor caught 13-yard touchdown pass from Cassidy to bump the McKenzie advantage to 14-0 at the break.

With both offenses unable to effectively sustain drives on each other in the third frame, it was an interception that facilitated the Rebels' third score of the night.

Cassidy intercepted a Cornersville pass and three plays later, Taylor found the end zone for his third score of the night to give the Rebels a 21-0 lead after the successful kick after.

McKenzie added one final score in the fourth quarter, this time coming on a 15-yard run by Taylor for the final margin of victory.

Caden White completed 2-of-3 passes for 16 yards for Cornersville, with Wesley Pigg hauling in one pass for nine yards.

Cornersville's stellar run game was held in check to the tune of just 18 yards on 23 carries.

Mason Calahan was the top earner on the ground, carrying the ball five times for 16 yards, while Ben Franklin added 10 yards on eight touches.

Defensively, Rhett Woodard and Bradden Hickman led the Bulldogs with five tackles apiece.

McKenzie proved effective on the ground and through the air, totaling 306 total yards of offense, with 205 coming on the ground.

Cassidy was effective in the pass game for the Rebels, completing 7-of-8 attempts for 101 yards and a pair of touchdowns.

He, along with Taylor, were the top earners on the ground.

Cassidy totaled 97 yards on 14 touches and found the end zone once, while Taylor added 97 yards and a score of his own.

The loss ends the season for Cornersville in what's been a stellar season for the Bulldogs.

Cornersville wraps up the season after finishing second in Region 5-A.

The Bulldogs' only two regular season losses came to Clay County, who finished the 2021 campaign with a 10-2 overall record, and defending Class A state champion Fayetteville, who will face McKenzie on Friday night in a battle of unbeaten in the state quarterfinals.

Lady Rockets soar over Cornersville in season opener

It was opening night for high school basketball on Tuesday at Chapel Hill with longtime head coach Hal Murrell sending out the Lady Rockets in his first game on the bench at Forrest versus the Cornersville Lady Bulldogs and former Frog Bottom standout football and basketball player Hayden McMahon, who returned to his alma mater and was on the bench in his debut with the Lady Bulldogs.

The Lady Rockets came away with a 53-31 wire-to-wire win in the intra-county rivalry Hall of Champions contest and extended their winning streak over Cornersville to 10 in a row, dating back to 2012.

"It was a step in the right direction. There were some mistakes, but I saw a lot of really, really good things," Murrell said. "I thought our transition was good and I thought our defensive intensity was good and we played as a team."

Addison Bunty had the best game of her Forrest career, flying all over the court as the Lady Rocket senior was a thieving defender, stealing the ball seven times and scoring on fast break layups on six of the steals while also pumping in a pair of 3-pointers to lead all scorers in the game with 20 points.

"I'm so proud of her. She is one of those kids that works her tail off," Murrell said. "She's sneaky quick and anticipates passes well and gets in the passing lane and when we can get out and run like that we are better."

Freshman Kinslee Inlow had 12 points, including three 3-pointers, Macyn Kirby added nine points, Megan Mealer chipped in with six points and Ryann Lewis, Carli Warner, and Alex Davenport all had two points apiece.

Anna Wood was the lone Lady Bulldog in double figures with 10 points while Jayli Childress had eight, Hannah Moore, Annabelle Mulliniks, and Addie Gentry all had three points apiece, Gracie Spray netted a deuce, and Katie Powers had one marker.

The Lady Rockets flew off the launch pad, opening the game with a 7-0 run behind a pair of steal and scores by Bunty.

Forrest extended its first quarter lead to 13-5 before a buzzer-beating 3-pointer by Cornersville's Anna Wood made it a five-point contest.

Wood nailed another trey early in the second period to cut the Forrest lead to four points at 15-11 before Inlow matched the long bomb at the other end and then Bunty did it again, swiping the rock on back-to-back Cornersville possessions and taking it the distance both times to double up the score at 22-11.

Forrest took a 22-14 lead to the locker room at halftime and scored the first six points of the third period, including a picture perfect pass by Kirby to Carli Warner to open the second half.

The Lady Rockets kept moving forward and with just under three minutes to play in the period, Inlow drilled back-to-back treys, opening up a 19-point lead at 38-19.

"I was glad to see Inlow knock some shots down. I know she is a great shooter," Murrell said. "She had struggled in the preseason and I think when she saw a couple go through the net. It really freed her up because she shot some tonight that didn't even touch the rim."

A Kirby bucket to start the fourth quarter made it a 43-24 contest before the Lady Bulldogs made a 7-2 mini-run, cutting the Forrest lead to 14 points on another Wood 3-pointer.

Cornersville had the ball two more times with a chance to cut deeper in to the deficit, but failed to score.

"Hats off to Cornersville, being down 15 to 20 points, they never gave up and kept grinding," Murrell said. "I see a lot of good things for them even though they have a young team and a new coach."

Inlow and Bunty put the game away with both players nailing a 3-pointer and Bunty

The Forrest Rockets hosted intra-county rivalry Cornersville for a season opening Hall of Champions contest at Chapel Hill Tuesday night and after taking a one-point halftime lead, the Bulldogs pulled away via a 17-1 third quarter for a 56-45 win.

"We obviously have some things to clean up like turnovers and communication on defense," Cornersville coach Peyton Newton said. "But man, the grit of these guys with having them for just a day or a day in a half of practice was great and they are a fun group to coach."

The Cornersville win broke a long 25-game losing streak for the Bulldogs against the Rockets with the last Cornersville win coming in a 55-48 triumph at Forrest in 2002.

"They didn't want us to come over here and beat them. I understand that and we knew that," Newton said. "Confidence-wise, we needed to come in here and get the 'W' and the guys gutted it out and found a way to win and we are very excited."

George Lovell led the Bulldogs in the scoring column with 12 points and Eli Welch was also in double figures with 11.

Bryce Woodard had nine points, including a pair of 3-pointers, Mason Calahan and Kaden Allen had seven points apiece, Blaine Woodard added five points, Kale Adcox and Khi Canty netted two points apiece, and Andrew Santini made one free throw.

Forrest's Andrew Timmons led all scorers in the contest with 15 points, including a stellar 7-for-9 effort from the free throw line while Deason Jones had nine points and Ben Villazon had eight points and the Rockets' only two 3-pointers in the game.

Brennan Mealer ended up with seven points, Josh Rumley added four, and Preston Gentry netted a deuce.

Villazon scored all eight of his points in the first period and Timmons added five points on drives to the rack while Lovell had six points for the Bulldogs, who trailed 17-13 at the end of the first quarter.

Gentry scored on a drive to the hoop to open up the second quarter and Timmons scored on another drive down the lane moments later to give Forrest a 21-13 lead.

Mealer scored on a low post bucket with just under five minutes to play in the first half to maintain the eight-point lead at 23-15 before the Bulldogs went on a 7-0 run behind 3-pointers by Bryce and Blaine Woodard to cut the Forrest lead to one point at 23-22.

Mealer and Lovell exchanged baskets at the end of the first half with Forrest in front 25-24.

Cornersville took it to the Rockets at the start of the second half, beginning with a 6-0 run to seize the lead at 30-25.

Karate students earn black belts

Staff Report

Three students of the Lewisburg Wado-Ryu karate school recently traveled to Murfreesboro and successfully tested for first degree black belt. These students have undergone several years of training to develop skills in forms, fighting, and techniques to qualify to go before a Board of Examiners for testing.

Jacob Rigsby, of Lewisburg Middle School, Nathaniel Carter, of Forrest Middle and Jainil Patel, of Marshall County High School, are the latest of 60 black belts promoted over the years by Monroe Carter, seventh degree black belt, whose first candidates went before the board in 1986.

Rockets

Bulldog players scored to put Forrest in a 15-point hole, entering the fourth quarter.

The Bulldogs built their lead to as many as 18 points on an Allen low-post bucket before the Rockets found some rhythm and went on an 8-0 run.

Jones scored six points in the surge and Rumley added a basket in the low post to cut the Cornersville lead to 10 points at 45-35.

Forrest kept chipping away and eventually sliced the Cornersville lead to seven points at 48-41 on a Rumley basket with two and half minutes to play in the game before the Bulldogs sealed the win with an 8-4 run that included six free throws down the stretch.

First-year Forrest coach Shane Chapman and the Rockets will get another chance at the Bulldogs when they travel to Frog Bottom on Monday night.

Newton talked about the coaching changes at Forrest with Murrell and Chapman, saying, "I just want the Forrest fans to know how lucky they are to have Chapman and Murrell to run these two programs. They are two great guys who are very good coaches and motivators and the programs are in good hands."

Georgia, Alabama, Oregon and Ohio State held their places in the College Football Playoff ranking Tuesday, with Cincinnati still sitting at fifth.

There was no movement in the selection committee's top seven after all those teams won last week. Michigan was still No. 6 and Michigan State seventh, heading into the Spartans' big game Saturday at Ohio State.

Notre Dame moved up a spot to eighth. Oklahoma State (9-1) is now the highest-ranked Big 12 team at ninth after Oklahoma was handed its first loss last week.

Wake Forest (9-1) is No. 10, the highest-ranked team from the Atlantic Coast Conference with three rankings left until selection Sunday.

In the seven-year history of the College Football Playoff, no team has come from farther back than ninth to reach the final four with two rankings remaining before selection Sunday. Michigan State did that in 2015, propelled by a victory at Ohio State.

Oklahoma was the one top-10 team to lose this past weekend and the Sooners fell to 13th.

Notable for Cincinnati, which is trying to become the first team from outside the Power Five conferences to make the playoff, was Houston moving into the rankings at 24th.

The Cougars have already clinched a spot in the American Athletic Conference championship game, where the Bearcats could be an opponent if they keep winning.

"When I talk about how firm (Cincinnati's) position is, this week it's rock-solid at No. 5," selection committee chairman and Iowa athletic director Gary Barta.

The Bearcats' only victory against a team ranked in the selection committee's top 25 is Notre Dame (9-1). They host SMU (8-2) on Saturday and then go to East Carolina (6-4) on the Friday after Thanksgiving.

What's obvious

— Barring a historic upset in one of its next two games, Georgia is going to enter the Southeastern Conference championship game — most likely against Alabama — playing for seeding.

— If Alabama wins out, including an SEC championship victory against Georgia, it's in.

— Ohio State and Oregon simply need to win out to get in. The Buckeyes have potentially the most difficult closing stretch in the country with Michigan State, Michigan and a Big Ten title game most likely against No. 15 Wisconsin or No. 17 Iowa.

Not only would three straight wins make the Buckeyes a lock, but it would also make Oregon almost impossible to overlook at 12-1 with a victory in Columbus against the Buckeyes. No matter how sketchy the Pac-12 competition has been.

Utah at No. 23 is the only other ranked Pac-12 team. The Utes host the Ducks on Saturday and those teams are positioned to meet again in the Pac-12 title game.

— If either Michigan or Michigan State wins out, beating the Buckeyes and taking a Big Ten title along the way, it's in.

What's unclear

— Can Alabama become the first team to reach the playoff with two losses?

There are two scenarios here: Alabama (9-1) loses a competitive game to Georgia in the SEC championship game. Or Alabama loses one of its two remaining regular-season games and beats Georgia in the SEC title game. Hard to imagine the Tide not getting in under the latter scenario. The former? Less likely, but never doubt the power Alabama has to sway the committee.

— Can Cincinnati be caught from behind even if it wins out?

The biggest threat to the Bearcats appears to be Oklahoma State (9-1), which could get to 12-1 with with a Big 12 championship and three victories against Oklahoma and Baylor.

There is also a scenario in which both Michigan and Michigan State win out, giving the Spartans a Big Ten title and easy entry to the playoff and leaving Michigan at 11-1, challenging the Bearcats.

Wake Forest winning the ACC at 12-1 would have a resume similar to unbeaten Cincinnati, but no one victory as impressive as a road win over Notre Dame.

Least likely to chase down an unbeaten Bearcats team is the Fighting Irish, who have gone on a nice run since losing to Cincinnati by 11 at home but with no really notable victories.

Packers up to No. 1, Titans climb to 2nd

By SIMMI BUTTAR
AP Pro Football Writer

NEW YORK — The Pack are back.

Aaron Rodgers' return helped lift the Green Bay Packers four places to the top spot of the latest AP Pro32 poll.

Rodgers missed the Packers' Week 9 loss in Kansas City after testing positive for COVID-19. However, the reigning MVP returned for Sunday's 17-0 victory over the Seattle Seahawks.

The Packers received six of the 12 first-place votes for 378 points in balloting Tuesday by media members who regularly cover the NFL.

"Defense coming on and (running back) A.J. Dillon packs a power punch, won without Rodgers throwing a TD," Fox Sports' John Czarnecki said.

The surging Tennessee Titans, who have won six in a row, got the remaining six first-place votes for 375 points to remain in second place.

Another first-place

Cowboys, climbed four places all the way to No. 3 after a blowout win over the Atlanta Falcons. The Cowboys head to Kansas City to face Patrick Mahomes and the Chiefs on Sunday in one of the top matchups of Week 11. The Chiefs rocketed up five spots to round out the top 10 after routing the Las Vegas Raiders 41-14.

"The Packers, now that they have Rodgers back, are my pick this week," said Charean Williams of Pro Football Talk.

"The Titans, perhaps, have the most impressive resume thus far. The Cowboys were impressive Sunday, but it's hard to overlook last week's game against the Broncos. That was a rout against a team that was routed by the Eagles this week.

"It appears the Chiefs are back, but I need to see it again this week against the Cowboys to be sure."

The Arizona Cardinals, last week's top team, dropped three spots to No. 4 after a 34-10 loss to the Carolina Panthers.

The Buffalo Bills rebounded after losing to the Jacksonville Jaguars by dominating the New York Jets 45-17 and gained two spots to No. 5.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers slid three places to No. 6 after dropping their second consecutive game, this one to Washington. The Bucs will finish off Week 11 when they host the New York Giants on Monday night.

The Los Angeles Rams also dropped their second in row and fell three spots to No. 7 after losing to the San Francisco 49ers 31-10 on Monday night.

"Matthew Stafford threw a league-leading three interceptions for touchdowns last season when he quarterbacked the Detroit Lions," said Rick Gosselin of Talk of Fame Network.

"He now has thrown interceptions for touchdowns in back-to-back games this month for the Rams. Joe Burrow (Bengals), Derek Carr (Raiders), Mac Jones (Patriots) and Matt Ryan (Falcons) have also thrown two interceptions for scores this season."

Don't look now, but the New England Patriots are back in the top 10. The Patriots, who climbed four spots to No. 8, have won four in a row and trail the Bills by only half a game in the AFC East. The Patriots, coming off a 45-7 rout of Cleveland, will open Week 11 when they head to Atlanta to take on the Falcons on Thursday.

"The Patriots look like contenders once more, as rookie Mac Jones gets more comfortable each week and (coach) Bill Belichick gets his team playing the kind of intelligent football that helped create a dynasty," Newsday's Bob Glauber said.

"Jones is no Tom Brady, but he looks good enough to get this team back into the tournament."

And the Baltimore Ravens fell three places to No. 9 after last week's loss at Miami.

“Doctor Woman” became a legend on the Cumberland Plateau

By Bill Carey
Tennessee History for Kids

If people who lived in Tennessee 100 years ago could speak to us today, they'd tell us we are spoiled. We have stores where we can buy just about every type of food, medicine or clothing we need. We have electricity and access to a clean, safe water supply. We all have some degree of access to a doctor.

As recently as the 1920s, large numbers of Tennesseans had access to none of these things. They lived on small homestead farms and got by on what little they could produce. They had no electricity and depended on their fireplaces for heat, often insulating their walls with mud and newspapers. Their homes were located on horse trails.

They did not have access to medical care.

A wonderful autobiography called Doctor Woman of the Cumberland by May Wharton describes the living conditions in rural Cumberland County from about 1918 until World War II. Dr. Wharton had lived and practiced medicine in many sections of the northern U.S. prior to 1917, when her husband accepted the job of principal of Pleasant Hill Academy, an institution in Cumberland County.

When she came to Pleasant Hill, Wharton planned to teach science and math full-time and practice medicine part-time, but that's not the way things worked out. As soon as word spread in Pleasant Hill and the small communities near it, such as Brownstown, De Rossett, Whittenburg, and Neverfail, people began turning up on Wharton's doorstep, asking the “Doctor Woman,” to come to their homes.

When she first got to Pleasant Hill, Wharton had no other way to get to these remote cabins than to hike across high mountains and over ravines. Eventually she acquired a horse, but the going was still quite rough. Take, for instance, the time that she had to cross the flooded Caney Fork River at night to reach a woman in labor at the other side.

“There remained the swinging bridge, and if I was to be any use to the young girl who was waiting for me to deliver her first baby, I should have to cross it quickly. No doubt that long foot-bridge swinging lightly over the gorge some seventy-five feet above the rushing torrent of the river was a picturesque sight. But I knew well how wind and weather had worn and loosened many of the boards on the walkway, and how the wire rope handrail, now much worn, offered treacherous sharp points to the grasping hand.

“I grasped the handrail and staggered giddily along the seeming miles of the madly swaying thing.”

Wharton sometimes arrived to find patients with advanced cases of influenza, pneumonia, cancer, tuberculosis, or in the middle of a difficult baby delivery. Using what instruments and medicines she could carry, she did her best.

In 1920, only two years after she came to Pleasant Hill, Wharton's husband died, and she made plans to leave Tennessee. The heads of 50 families – just about every household within several miles of Pleasant Hill – signed a letter asking her to stay. “Doctor Woman,” the letter said, “we feel that we cannot do without you.” Because of this appeal, Wharton remained on the mountain, continued her house calls, and started a hospital in a vacant commercial building. It proved to be too small, which is why she raised money to start a 30-bed hospital known as the Upper Cumberland Mountain Sanitarium. This remained the primary medical facility in the area until the Cumberland Medical Center opened in 1950.

To this day, Wharton's name is associated with several institutions in the area – including the Uplands Retirement Village and a group home for the elderly called Wharton Homes. I visited there not long ago and was happy to see that they are proud of their association with “Doctor Woman” of the Cumberland.

Chinese Wild Ginger: Asarum splendens

UT Gardens' November 2021 Plant of the Month

Chinese wild ginger is a shining example of a tough and versatile ginger.

If you are tired of groundcovers so ordinary that you don't even see them anymore, then you will appreciate the exquisite glossy marbling on each leaf of Chinese ginger. Asarum splendens is a spreading evergreen member of the pipevine family, Aristolochiaceae, and develops into a groundcover that spreads swiftly enough to achieve satisfying coverage but not so fast as to be rampantly difficult to control. With a height of just 6-8 inches, Chinese ginger provides a low but richly textured flooring under azaleas, aucuba or big-leaf hydrangeas.

Its substantial cordate leaves offer bolder foliage than the typical evergreen groundcovers, well appreciated in the shade garden once the summer foliage of hostas have been erased by frost.

Winter containers benefit from its mounding dark foliage to anchor sparkling golden or variegated sedges and saucy pansies. The deep green leaves are almost black yet offer shimmering glints of silver when struck by light. Don't worry about putting Chinese ginger into all day sun during the cooler months. During summer, either move the container to a shady setting or add a tall plant to the combination that can offer shelter from the sun during the hottest parts of the day.

In the landscape, remember that its very dark foliage can make it almost disappear in deep shade, so bring it forward where it can enjoy a few hours of late or early sunlight, or use in bright shade – or at least provide some contrast with lighter foliated plants for backdrop.

This plant does well in dry shade as long as soils are not terribly droughty and is happy in the company of autumn fern, heuchera and hellebore. It is deer resistant, and durably perennial in Zones 5 to 9. In the very coldest Tennessee winters or regions, it may lose some foliage to a severe drop in temperatures but will rebound in spring.

Let's face it, most evergreen perennials generally fall into two categories – the overused and predictable groundcovers or the sadly underutilized – when there are many that can play a variety of roles for year-round interest.
